Too Much Reference to Japan.

THE HOUSE naval budget sub-committee of the ways and means committee took a decisive step looking toward limitation of armaments when it determined upon a limitation of naval personnel...

Such being the case, it is up to the three individual nations to maintain as many men as they shall deem necessary for the proper manning of their navies, and pay the piper. The main point to be taken into consideration is how many men actually are needed...

Withdrawal From Shantung.

The following is a liberal translation of an editorial appearing recently in the Nichi Nichi, one of Japan's leading newspapers:

THE Japanese government has decided to withdraw the Japanese troops from Shantung and has dispatched instructions to Mr. Obata, Japanese minister to China, to notify the Chinese government to that effect.

It is especially gratifying to note that the Japanese government has decided to withdraw the army earlier than the time fixed by the Washington Conference. There is no doubt whatsoever that this will go a long way to clearing up the misunderstanding and suspicions entertained against Japan by China and other powers.

On the other hand, it is a great pity that while Japan is so earnest to fulfill her promise the Chinese government is not yet ready to receive it. It is said that when the Japanese minister notified the Chinese government that Japan was ready to withdraw her army from Shantung...

According to the latest reports from China, it seems that the Chinese government has decided to send about 1000 specially selected policemen to Shantung to guard the railway there in place of the Japanese army.

It is reported that the Chinese government has approached the American government through the American minister to China regarding the question of opening the cities and towns along the Shantung railway to international use. Japan is kept ignorant. Japan has shown much sincerity and honesty in her dealings with China and yet the latter is treating her in an unkindly manner...

JAPAN MAY ADOPT ROMAN CHARACTERS.

THE movement in Japan for the adoption of Roman characters in place of the ideographs, based on the Chinese, used for many centuries, has reached that point according to the Jiji, where certain members of the Japanese Diet propose to introduce a bill for the promulgation of the teaching of Roman letters.

It is very hard to remember all the difficult characters and each character has so many pronunciations that it is very difficult to define. Very often a mistake occurs between scholars on the question of pronouncing particular vowels. It is also said if one can read the names of persons correctly always, he is quite an authority on the language.

THE PASSING OF MR. KAI.

THE Rev. Mr. H. Y. Shibata, pastor of the Japanese Bible Institute, Sacramento, informs the Japanese American News of the death in Japan of Mr. O. Kai of San Francisco, an importer of Japanese objects of art, who was a relative of Mr. Shibata.

Mr. Kai, says Mr. Shibata, was the first student to be graduated by Keio College, now a university of high standing. He was the most beloved disciple of the founder of the school, Mr. Yukichi Fukuzawa, better known as the Sage of Meiji.

THE STIRRING BATTLES OF KOKUSENYA.

By Chikamatsu Monzayemon. CONTINUED FROM LAST SATURDAY.

"DON'T be rash, my dear!" Kokusenyia cried, catching his wife's uplifted arm and averting the blow. "This lady is the royal highness, Princess Sendan. She is the younger sister of the Emperor of China, of whom my father has told us so often.

It is a great honor and pleasure to see your highness," he said, bowing low. "Possibly you have heard of me. I am Tei Shiryō, formerly a minister of the late lamented Emperor. My wife and son are Japanese. It is true, but we should be very much indebted if you did not do us our best to repay the Emperor for all his favors.

The princess could say no more. Hot tears coursed down her cheeks. "Kokusenyia and his parents held council together and it was decided that they should set out immediately for China and make search for General Gō Sankai. With the latter's assistance he was to undertake the restoration of the Ming dynasty.

At the conclusion of this discussion Kokusenyia bade his parents farewell, and taking the princess by the hand, embarked in a small boat with her. His wife returned at this moment with a look of amazement when she saw what was going forward.

A JEALOUS WOMAN. Komutsu's conclusion was that all three of them had decided to go to China, leaving her behind. She felt persuaded that, once in China, she would be divorced and her husband would take the princess as wife.

COOLIE IMMIGRATION. CHINESE coolie immigration to South Manchuria for the last two weeks of February is given as 12,300 from Tsingtao and 6000 from Chefoo, which figures take into consideration only those immigrants who came by boat.

LEGENDS OF THE TENGU.

YOSHITSUNE, one of the greatest warriors of Old Japan, legend has it, was a swordsman of the King of the Tengu. The Tengu were a class of goblins or gnomes that haunted the mountains and woodlands and played many pranks.

The Tengu are minor divinities and excel in the art of fencing, and, for that matter, in the use of weapons generally. The ideographs with which the name is written signify "heavenly dog," which is rather a misnomer, for the creature bears no resemblance to a dog, but rather is partly human, partly bird-like in appearance.

Sometimes, however, the Tengu hides humans away in a most mysterious manner, and when they finally return to their homes they are in a deplorable condition. This strange occurrence is called Tengu-kakushi, or "hidden by a Tengu."

At the conclusion of this discussion Kokusenyia bade his parents farewell, and taking the princess by the hand, embarked in a small boat with her. His wife returned at this moment with a look of amazement when she saw what was going forward.

CONCERNING MEN AND WOMEN AND LOVE.

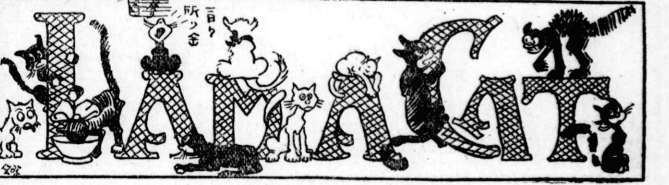

LOVE is a miracle that human beings can perform, writes Toshiro Ikuikata in Kaizo (Reconstruction).

What a miserable and yet a fortunate destiny that the radically different things, Man and Woman, live together in the same world. Oscar Wilde says a good woman gives man suffering, a bad woman gives him trouble. He says again that women want more to be loved than to be understood. In this he is with Strindberg somewhat.

WHERE WOMAN SHINES. Inconvenient outside, she is a capital convenience in the household. The most sluggish woman takes care of herself. She does not depend on others for what she is to do. She even tries to help others.

BEWARE THE TEARS. Woman's tears are nothing, but her tears are fearful. Woman's tears will beat man; woman's smile emancipates and inspires him and makes him most faithful servant finally.

FOREIGN lawyers in China who have qualified at the bar of their own country will be permitted to practice law in the Chinese courts and will be furnished with credentials by the Chinese ministry of justice.

By SOSEKI NATSUME. (Translated by a Japanese Schoolboy.)

He still is endeavoring to think very like hard, there are only this one glass in all the whole small house.

HARD NUT TO CRACK. Now the looking glass which ought to be residing cozily in the baths room, moreover the only looking glass in the whole little house, are in his study. If he brought it in what are the reason for him bringing it?

A MENTAL BAROMETER. Perhaps this are one of the token of his being irregular in the mental power. This way of treating his hair do not harmonize with the table but nevertheless at the same time it do not hurt anybody so nobody say or mention anything about it.

A STARTLING DISCOVERY. The little whistles afterward he say at himself: "Truly, my own face is so ugly." It surely are admirably to admit the ugliness of his own face. His manner are like a crazy but what he speak is a whole truth. If he progresses in thought too rapidly he undoubtedly will get himself all scared up to death of his own ugliness.
