THE TARGET OF THE ARROWS
 (By Oh Tee)

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT!

Ever since I was a youth attending public school, women always have been a mystery to me. Now I am married and have lived with my wife (who is a woman) for nearly five years, and yet the mystery is unsolved. Trying to define women is altogether too much like trying to define weather. Variable—that's the word for both.

You would get one definition of women from Shakespeare, who defines women as—bone, rag and a hunk of hair; quite a different definition from Dante, seeking his lost Beatrice in the Inferno; another reply from Paris, who learned of women from Helen; and another yet from Socrates who found the cup of hemlock less bitter than the tongue of his wife, Xanthippe.

Seen without their coatings of artifice and their trappings of guile, stripped of all their petit feminine foibles and pretenses, what kind of a creature is woman anyhow?

There are certain fixed characteristics of women which are unaltered by time, circumstance or race. I do not say that none are exempt from the rule, but it would be more emphatic if I should say that a large percentage shares them in some degree.

The first and most important characteristic, from the viewpoint of a husband is: women are mysterious. They never play an open-handed game. That is—they always have a spare ace or a joker up their sleeve besides their arm. They are incalculable—they are the circuitous sex.

A second characteristic of woman, which is responsible for much quarrel between man and wife, is that women value personal appearance above any other single factor.

Ever was the only woman who never complained of her soiled

HARADA ARRIVES IN N. Y., MEETS SHIMIZU; TRAINS AT EAST ORANGE COURT

Will Sail for England on Liner Acquitania May 31

Special to the Japanese American News
 NEW YORK, May 27.—Japanese Davis cup player Harada, arrived here Saturday morning at 10:40 at Pennsylvania Station. Shimizu and other friends met him at the station upon his arrival.

Harada is stopping at the Vanderbilt Hotel. He will leave for England on the Acquitania May 31. Meantime he will practice at East Orange Club. Wimbledon matches will start June 20 and continue for two weeks.

Harada is confident that with his past experience he will sweep all opponents and clean up at both Wimbledon and Davis cup tournaments.

Parlier High School To Graduate 2 Girls

Two Japanese girls are on the list of prospective graduates of the class of 1927 of Parlier Union High School.

The two girls are Matsuko Matsumoto and Yukiko Kubota.

crepe-de-chine or the contour of her Easter hat. A vast majority of men cannot see why women must make such ado about things which men regard as comparatively unimportant.

The third characteristic is that women are more mercenary. When I speak of women being mercenary, I don't mean that they are female Shylocks. Women in general are the tedious sex; perhaps that is the reason for their inheritance of the pecuniary conservatism. This is almost an asset in many cases rather than be strictly manish.

The last and the most conspicuous characteristic of women is their hunger for affection and love. Their lives are dependent upon the quality of love which is bestowed upon them. They are unselfish in their love, and a great majority of divorce cases end up like this:

"My husband is the kind of a man who needs some one to look after him. All I hope is that the next wife will make him happy!" They say "man's love is of man's life a thing apart. 'Tis woman's whole existence." After all I have written on women, if you should ask me to define it, I would answer—"I don't know."

The Ranch

(By Iwao Kawakami)

It had been an unusually, hot day of summer and the blood-red glow of the waning sunset still burned on the cheeks of Mrs. Murai as she stood in the doorway of the ranch kitchen.

Another day of work had been done and, for a moment, she remembered that it was her twenty-fifth birthday and—her third year of marriage.

Her reflections wandered lazily over the outstanding incidents of an uneventful day. Only two facts were worth recalling—that her son was slowly recovering from a bad attack of bronchial fever, and a new man had come to work.

Her son had been ill-humored and querulous in convalescence, while the young worker (about twenty-one, she estimated), had been rather quiet and yet she had been strangely disquieted by his presence.

She could see him now, sitting in the shade of a fig tree, his tousled head bent over a pencil moving spasmodically across a white sheet of paper.

For a moment, she wondered what he was writing about; then she dismissed her curiosity.

As she was putting the dishes away, the doorway was darkened by his figure.

"I wish you had stood there a little longer," he said.

"Why? Oh, I see—"

She found that it was a self-conscious strain to pose naturally for the first time and was rather relieved when he tore up what he had been drawing a minute later. And yet, she had suddenly gone to him and asked:

"Why did you tear it up? I wanted to see it."

She bit her lip, realizing the callous slip of her tongue.

He sharpened his pencil to a fine point before he answered: "You, and the ranch didn't seem to fit—that's all."

Her answer was checked by his smile as he went into his bunkhouse.

"I wonder what he meant by that?" she thought to herself as she heard her son calling again, and saw her husband returning from the fields, with a shovel over his shoulder.

Winters Nine Abandons Cellar Title in League

Team Promised China Meshi If Victor Over Capitol Cubs

The Winters baseball team of the Sacramento Valley League, which has been enjoying a cellar title for some time, has shown remarkable and sharp improvements.

In a tilt last Sunday with the strong Walnutters, the Winterites blanked the aggressors by a 3 to 0 count. This Sunday, today, they will tackle the Sacramento Cubs at their own diamond.

THREE S. F. BOYS PLAYING FOR WINTERS

The Winterites are backed by three of our own San Francisco boys, Bo and Bee Uyeda, composing the star battery and Yongi Hamatake shining on second bag.

According to official words received here, the Winter boys are promised a China meshi upon their victory over the Cubs, and today's game should witness some accurate swatting.

YOUNG BUDDHISTS OF BERKELEY ORGANIZE "SYNCO-PEP" BAND

Nine Syncoaters Start First Practice on Friday, May 27

On Friday night, May 27, the quiet neighborhood of Channing way in Berkeley was startled into insomnia by a weird hash of harmony issuing from the staid, old Buddhist Church.

After the police had raided the defiled sanctuary of the church (because the band had disturbed the sleep of the "snorers") the "bulls" carted away four saxophones and clarinets, but left the piano for the Ottovich Express to dispose of at the Oakland Municipal Junk Company.

But, all joking aside, the "syncoatin" seimens of the Berkeley Buddhist Church have organized a "synco-symphony" orchestra with four saxophones and clarinets, and a "Baby Grand."

These musicians have high ambitions—they started to practice on "Blue Skies" but it all turned out to be just "Crazy Words—Crazy Tunes."

However, with a couple of more trombones, violinists, cornets, banjos and drummers, they hope to turn out a "jazz band" that will make Rube Wolf drink castor oil (one of the best ways to commit suicide).

P. S. They would like to take a few lessons from Rube, though!

play final game with Fresno Athletes, starting at 2 p. m.

Algun Huskies to tackle San Leandro Americans at San Leandro, 1 p. m.

WALNUT GROVE: Marysville to play here in Sacramento Valley League tilt.
