Resurrection

Viewed from the standpoint of artistic drama, "Resurrection," now playing at the California Theatre (San Francisco), is undoubtedly one of the big productions of the year.

On the stage, "Resurrection" met with great success wherever it was produced—in New York, London, or Paris. The screen version is powerful and real in its treatment of this great tragedy of a woman's and man's degradation and their subsequent resurrection.

The scene is laid in Russia of the Czar. A wealthy prince, poisoned by the demoralizing life in the army, wrongs his lover while on a memorable visit to his aunt's estate.

The character of Katusha is vividly portrayed by Dolores Del Rio. And Rod La Rogue as the prince gives the best performance of his career.

"But I thought you were a sworn bachelor. What made you change your mind?" "Oh, two very small things."

Four Little S. F. Echoes Greet Us from Locoya

Echoes Hike to Mt. Veeder And Swim in Lake

The following is the letter we received from four members of the Little Echo Club of the San Francisco Japanese Y.W.C.A., while they were in Camp Locoya, Napa:

"Dear Editor: "How do you do? We four girls from Little Silver Echo Club of San Francisco are having a wonderful time at Camp Locoya with the S.F. Girl Reserves.

"There are six girls and one beautiful counselor in each six tent, beside two cooks, a doctor, and a nurse for the whole camp. Hiking up to Mt. Veeder and nice swimming in a charming little lake shaded by lovely forests of fir, redwood, and oak, and the big camp fire, songs, and stunts when evening shadows fall, are all just wonderful to tell! We wish you were all here!"

JAPANESE IN MEXICO ARE ASSIMILATING SAYS MEXICO SEC'T

80 Percent Marry Mexican Girls; Possibilities Explained

The Japanese in Mexico are demonstrating that they are capable of assimilating, according to Saichiro Koshida, first class secretary of the Japanese legation of Mexico City.

"80 percent of the married Japanese in Mexico," Koshida explained, "have Mexican wives. That is assimilation in the real sense of the word."

Referring to opportunities in Mexico, Koshida said that no one should go to Mexico without first investigating his prospects, especially in the matter of purchasing lands. Otherwise, he said, it would be dangerous with possibilities of failure.

L.A. DAI ICHI GAKUEN PREPARES TO ORGANIZE GIRLS' HIGH DIVISION

New Department Will Enjoy Standard of Japan's High School

The board of directors of the Los Angeles Dai Ichi Gakuen held its regular meeting recently and decided to establish a girls' high school department within the gakuen in order to complement the existing boys' high division. Principal Shimano is already engaged in carrying out the decision.

The action of the board was necessitated by the fact that of the sixteen graduates of the grammar department the majority were girls. At least eleven or twelve of them expressed their desire to continue their language school studies. The contemplated department will be conducted upon a standard of instruction equal to that of the girls' high school of Japan, and the textbooks have already been decided upon.

SACRAMENTO YOUTH PENS 1ST. SUCCESSFUL NOVEL

Karl Nakagawa's "The Rendezvous of Mysteries" Is Accepted by Publisher in Philadelphia; Novel Will Be In Publication by Next Nov.

The Capital City claims a youth who is destined to step into the field of fame and advancement. This person is none other than Karl Shigeru Nakagawa, but more commonly known as "Johnson".

A few months ago, this specimen of remarkable humanity, otherwise "Johnson", completed writing a book-length novel entitled, "The Rendezvous of Mysteries", and it was sent to a large publisher in Philadelphia for examination. Friends were surprised when they heard that he had written a novel, but all of them, including "Johnson" himself, received greater astonishment when the publisher, after weeks of careful study, accepted his story, and sent the youth a Royalty and Publication contract.

Almost the entire plot is laid in Sacramento. It is well-written, being based on mysteries, thrills, suspense, love, sentiment, and blood-chilling incidents with the supernatural and many other interesting points. The novel has 35 chapters containing 80,000 words. To write a story of that length is a great achievement, but to have it accepted the first time is really an accomplishment of the highest nature. Glory by carloads must be handed to this young author.

WRITES UNDER MANY MANY SEVERE HANDICAPS

He had many discouraging odds to start and finish the story. In the first place, he did not have any authorship training but wrote with sheer natural ability. An eastern magazine has stated that nearly 50,000 manuscripts are rejected yearly, many from even experienced authors. "Johnson" was, also, too young in years, to consider such a great undertaking that required so much nerve, hard-thinking, etc. The fact that he is a Japanese by descendant made conditions even harder for him, since a publisher might not have considered anything written by a Japanese. With all these seemingly hopeless factors against him and many others, he struggled with the firm determination to achieve and succeeded. The publisher states that such a case where an unknown writer can have his very first novel published can be termed a genius.

"Johnson" Nakagawa's novel will not be out until November or December, though preparations for printing will commence in August. He signed and returned his contract on July 5. The books will be printed and then distributed thruout every city in America and he will get 15 percent royalty on every book sold up to 25,000 copies, and his percentage will be increased should the sales exceed that figure.

INSPIRATION AND WORK ARE NECESSARY FACTORS

The other day, when asked how he ever happened to compose such a novel, he merely replied: "A little bit of inspiration, a proper usage of concentration, and a great deal of imagination, plus patience and determination to write and write hard, and with a never-ceasing willingness to struggle were the main points to consider."

The youthful writer is a native-born Sacramentoan, having first seen light on this world about twenty years ago. He received his grammar school education in a small country school and after graduating with honors, attended the Sacramento High School. At present, he is working on his father's farm at Broderick, Yolo County. Whenever he blows into town, he is congratulated by his friends for having succeeded in the authorship line. Though Sacramento is proud of having an author of her own, the Japanese community everywhere are proud of him, too, since he is a member of the rising second generation. We are all with you "Johnson", with many regards and congratulations. skubrt rtySn f5ethi ceafI d'tgu.pa
