Japan and the Oriental Civilization

By Takanobu Murobushi (From J.S.C.A. Bulletin)

The fusion of civilizations has often been discussed in Japan as well as in other countries...

So-called "dangerous thoughts" imported from abroad in our day are supposed by some authorities to have harmonized with the traditional national thought or spirit of this country...

Buddhism is believed to have conquered Japan, but I think that it was not a conquest; on the contrary, it was a case of harmony...

It is generally believed among the Japanese that Confucianism is representative of Chinese culture, and that after it was imported to Japan, it became a national culture for her...

Japan Concludes New Treaty with Germany

TOKYO, July 14—Japan's new commercial treaty with Germany will be signed within three days. Dr. Dolf, German ambassador to Japan, having completed negotiations of this treaty, is expected to resign his diplomatic position in Tokyo and return home to his country after the Japanese Imperial coronation next fall.

Tanaka Retains Head of Manchurian Railway

TOKYO, July 14—Hanichi Yasuhiro, who was requested to resign his position as president of the South Manchurian Railway Company, will temporarily hold his office at the request of Premier Tanaka, it is reported here. Jotaro Yamamoto, was mentioned as successor to Yasuhiro, is being opposed by a group of Seiyukai members.

mind, rather than system of religion or philosophy. Apart from the question whether Lao-tze was an historical person or not, his philosophy also represented the Chinese mind in another form. It was not a mere manifestation of the Chinese mind, but his thoughts closely resembled Buddhism, so that Taoism borrowed a great deal from the Buddhist doctrine in making such a wonderful development in China. It may, therefore, be said that the so-called "Chinese mind" is also Indian and Oriental, constituting the Asiatic culture. (To be continued)

S. F. Bear Cubs Return From Pescadero Camp

Cubs Witness Huge Bullhead Pursued by Sea Lion

Eight Bear Cubs of the San Francisco Japanese Y.M.C.A. returned from their summer camp at Pescadero Tuesday afternoon, while the two other Cubs, Mitsuo Saito and Iwao Hashiguchi, stayed behind for few days longer.

All the returning Bear Cubs appeared healthy and sunburnt, and their enthusiastic stories of their experiences at the camp, testified to the wonderful time they had enjoyed. The group was led by Yasuo Abiko and Mr. Numajiri, secretary of the "Y".

One of the unusual experiences enjoyed by the Cubs occurred when a huge "bullhead" with a head "two times the size of a human dome" was chased out of the sea by a huge sea lion and landed on the beach. On Sunday the Bear Cubs enjoyed a fellowship with the American "Y" boys when they visited Camp Yu-Ma-Ci-A, some eleven miles from Pescadero.

2 Americans Enroll At Redwood Gakuen

Rex and Robert Barnes, 13 and 9 years-old American boys, are attending the summer school at Redwood Gakuen. They are reported to be very studious and are improving rapidly.

The Gakuen will have enrolled three American boys at the end of the year, as Arthur Walsh, the former Selby Lane Gakuen student, who is at present in Southern California, will return to Redwood City to study under the instructor of the local Gakuen.

"The attendance of American boys encourages the Japanese pupils very much," says Mr. Odashima, the instructor there.

BUDDHIST GAKUEN OF FRESNO GIVES PROGRAM OF ENTERTAINMENT, SUN

Skits and Operettas Feature Language School Program

Short operettas, scenes enacted from the Japanese textbooks, singing and pretty dancing by groups of girls, featured the program of exercises given by the Japanese students of the Buddhist Language School of Fresno Sunday night, July 10, at the Nippon Hall. It was well attended by parents, friends and the interested public.

Probably one of the most comical numbers was the one about the "komori" and the fight between the birds and the beasts. Two groups of young boys, about eight or nine, represented the birds and the beasts. In the supposed fight between them, the husky boys engaged in a sham battle on the stage so realistically, that an adult person had to enter the stage and separate some of the youngsters. The Cherry Blossoms dance was attractive. This was danced by a large number of small girls all dressed in pastel-colored dresses.

Much applause greeted Chizuko Kamikawa at the close of her song, "Santa Lucia". She had a particularly fine voice, and it is one worth cultivating. The "Orochi-no-Taiji" (The Slaying of the Eight-Headed Dragon), an operatta, had admirable scenes and artistic backgrounds. All the actors were costumed according to the styles of that period, and the looming mountains and forests behind the village certainly made this operatta realistic. The coming of the dragon, and the slaying of the latter, was accomplished amidst rumblings representing thunder, and flashes of lightning revealed the horrible monster writhing on the darkened stage. The beautiful princess stood nearby, safely perched on top of a high rock, while the hero slashed the dragon and finally discovered the precious gifts. It was almost twelve when the program was finished.

"Lost World" To Be Shown at Florin

The "Lost World", a very spectacular moving picture of a animal hunt in South America, will be shown in Florin at the Japanese Gakuen hall Saturday evening, July 16. It is an educational as well as an entertaining production.
