WRITES ON LITERARY CAREER

Boy Novelist Says Concentration Necessary

By SHIGERU NAKAGAWA

Author "Rendezvous of Mysteries" Ever since the time when the acceptance of my novel for book publication had become a fact, I have been approached with the questions: How did you ever happen to write a story? How did you accomplish such an undertaking? What prompted you and what was your very first step in the literary line?

These queries and many others to the same effect were showered upon me quite frequently by inquisitive parties, mostly the white people. It seems that they, in particular, were more eager to be informed upon the details that resulted in the completion and successful acceptance of my book.

As I recollect, my first literary work, exclusive of school days, was a long poem which I had composed during the late months of 1925. It concerned the Nippon Club's baseball tour of Japan, of which I was fortunately a member. Traveling, as many people know, is very educational, and I had taken advantage of that opportunity by enhancing my knowledge if it was possible. The trip was such that it gave me a guiding influence, and being so fascinated, I had wanted to express my sensations in some manner to the people of Sacramento who had made our tour possible. So I had resorted to putting

CHURCH BODY TO MEET IN CONFERENCE

CHURCH FEDERATION MAX FORM SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

The establishment of a Northern California Japanese Sunday School Association will be the main subject of discussion at the annual conference of Northern California Japanese Church Federation to be held at Fresno on January 17-19.

Rev. Hata, pastor of the local Christian Church and head of the Federation, declared that the three main proposals to be made in behalf of the cabinet at the conference are as follows: 1. Inauguration of World Sunday School Convention 2. Establishment of Northern California Sunday School Association 3. Establishment of connections between the Northern California Japanese Church Federation and the Southern California Japanese Evangelical League.

Showa Wins Yoko Choy Grid, 6-0

Picking up a humble and running for the only touchdown of the game, Ship Saito, playing end position for the Showa Athletic Club won the most important game of the season from the local Yoko Choy Club on New Year's afternoon.

With a 6-0 margin, the Showa boys reversed their last year's defeat suffered from the hands of the Grant Avenue team. Their victory on New Year day marks the second successful game of the season, and with two more games scheduled for January, the season looks easy sailing. On January 15 a return game at Sacramento with the Student Club eleven and the Tung Chi fracas on 22nd will probably climax the season.

DISCUSSES SUBJECT OF MARRIAGE

Second Generation Finds Condition Unsatisfactory

By A MEDITATOR

The following is a caustic article by an anonymous second generation writer who flays the conventional first generation attitude toward marriage: With minds as tranquil and cheerful as the stolid physiognomies from which we radiate Xmas cheer while inwardly register despair at mounting gifts totals, let us cast aside morbidity complexes and convention and embark on a philosophy of second generation ideals.

Now, as to this thing of being married. Am I? Well I should laugh. HAH—HAH. Why you know yourself that the rules governing assaying 'at' essaying in this contest require participants to be under 22. I am only 21 and my Japanese parent will tell you that 21 is far too young an age, yea, an unholy age to pledge one's faculties and facilities in holy wedlock. So please don't be foolish, I am not married.

And even if I disregarded that stated objection and were contemplating such an exalted position, there are other drawbacks. For I am poor, my salary of $6.00 per day is not tinged with that affluent hue that attracts son-in-law hunters. My parents are still poorer, woe betide, and cannot even give me a Church Wedding. "Ho marry"—HAH, HAH. They laugh, those old-fashioned minds that are ensconced in parental craniums, and they snicker dubiously, skeptically, openly, those old-fashioned minds of some older second generation people who are yet single. Yes, I have been wild, I have flagrantly, promiscuously defied the ancient, strict straight-backed, corseted blue laws that some second generation leaders lay down as convention. No, I cannot marry. "Him marry"—Oh, how ridiculing, they chortle—HAH, HAH. Yes, I must change my ways, I

U. C. EXTENSION COURSES OPEN ON JANUARY 9

PUBLIC SPEAKING, ART, DRAMATICS, ENGLISH OFFERED

"Explore New Worlds!" is the slogan of the University of California extension division which will begin its new term classes in this city next Monday, January 9, at its headquarters, 540 Powell street.

Japanese young people who are desirous of putting their evenings to good purpose are urged to attend these classes which are extremely helpful and well organized. Some of the classes include accounting, advertising, art, commercial art, dramatics, public speaking, journalism, law, literature, and history.

Public speaking, which is one of the most popular subjects, is taught by Professor Dwight E. Watkins, and the class begins on Tuesday, January 10. News and Editorial Writing, taught by Mr. Weigle, will begin on January 10, while classes in Advanced Composition, which is being conducted by Marrah, will begin on January 9. The fees are normally $6 for one-unit course and $12 for two-unit courses. The classes are conducted weekly, and an average of 15 meetings completes the course.

must be good in public, I must be bad in secret and conform to convention when I am with those who know me. Yes, I must put my proboscis to the grindstone and manufacture a bank account that can withstand the rugged onslaughts of an elaborate church wedding and bring plutocratic gratification to my in-laws. Money can assuage any little hypocrisies I have indulged in and the year will bring me prosperity and matrimony. How bright and glorious a future lies before me. But, as I look about me, and see these 24-25-26 year old hopefuls well advanced on their grinds—some of them almost making 10 more dollars per month than I. And I see their chosen ones who have not yet been asked, seed of a race whose maturity is attained in the late teens, now 2 or 3 or 4 or even 5 years past that stage, still waiting for the alms of their lips. I say, how bright a future lies before us. How beautiful and noble the sacrifice made by these young people so that old country conventions may be observed. Yes, these middle class and poorer Americans are very foolish people. They marry young with no display of opulence, a minister's fee the only expense involved. No wonder all these divorces, these triangles, these killings. Of course these are numerous exceptions, but as you know there are always exceptions, and no doubt in those cases, the couple were too ignorant to disagree and like fools do, loved hard, worked harder and made good, very foolish, I say. Japanese have more sense, they wait till they can marry in the conventional and orthodox manner. Since I am Japanese, I must do so. How noble and how uplifting. But somewhere beneath my pachydermous hide, something

AMBLERS WIN 43-26 WASEDANS

Y.M.B.A. Picked For Second Tilt Here

STOCKTON, Jan. 5.—The casaba tossers from Tokyo, after enjoying their first New Year in San Francisco, met the stellar combination of hoop artists of the local Amblers Club last Tuesday night at the Pacific College gymnasium and suffered their second set-back since their invasion.

Altho the score indicated a 43-26 victory for the husky Clubmen, "Pete" Lenz mentor of the local high school, charged the defeat to physical handicaps. During the first ten minutes of play, the Clubmen shot ahead with a 11 point margin, but from then the Waseda hoopers played on par until close to the end, when again the Amblers cut loose with some half dozen long-distance shots.

Captain Tomita and Hayakawa starred on the shooting list with 6 and 5 points. Waseda Roster L.F. Kurozawa R.F. Suzuki C. Katsuno R.G. Tomita S.G. Tomioka.

On January 13, the Wasedans will revisit the Spud City to tackle the local Y.M.B.A. quintet. IRLS, RICHES, RANKLES and WHOOPS into assertiveness. Maybe it is some of that 'ole fight' instilled there years ago by a high school coach. Maybe it is some vestigial blood corpuscle of a Bolshevik—ancestor spurred out of somnolence by a goal of restraint. But anyway, my inner being revolts against convention and bombards it with bombastic bullets of lingo. No, my name is not Memken, nor is this an attempt to set a criterion of Mongolian Menkense, but straight from the shoulder now, aren't some of our second generation conventions the most mid-Victorian things you ever saw, let alone the most misguided. I could dwell on subjects that would cause self-styled high-hatters to squirm under inferiority complexes and so do without being overly specific. But I won't if they promise to kick themselves into consciousness of the fragile foolishness that constitutes their attitudes. Disparagers of hypocrisy could ramp and rant to a stage of nervous prostration among the ranks of second generation leaders. But my barb is covered with virginal proof velvet and there are innumerable redeemable second generation features too which I will not quote for this was intended to be a Matrimonial Meditation. So, one and all, Happy New Year and you over-ripened spinners and convention shackled bachelors, make way for youth and take the advice of a youthful lover. Get married, Leap Year 1928. Let me laugh, HAH—HAH.
