THE MAGAZINE KING OF JAPAN

By Isob Yamagata
In the Pacific World

Twenty years ago Mr. Seiji Noma was nobody, having been then no more than a poor paid teacher in a provincial school. Today, besides being a millionaire, he is the greatest publisher east of the Suez. The figures mentioned of his various publications appear fabulous. In addition to being the publisher of numerous books, he is the proprietor of nine big monthlies. One of these, King, has a guaranteed circulation of one and a half million copies and none of his other magazines has less than 100,000 readers. It is estimated that the total number of his readers is more than 10,000,000. In other words, out of every five Japanese is a reader of his magazines. From Hokkaido to Kyushu, in Manchuria, Korea, Formosa, Saghallen, and in that part of the United States, where Japanese colonies are found in appreciable numbers, the magazines of the Kodan Sha occupy by far the largest bulk of the stock on display.

What accounts for such an astonishing success as he has achieved? Was it due to a large amount of capital having been placed at his disposal? No, for as a matter of fact Mr. Noma started with little or no capital. Was it then owing to exceptional cleverness in seizing and making the most of opportunities to meet and please the popular whim?

No, he is possessed of no such talent. The fact is that ever since he started in business as a publisher he has consistently worked hard with sincerity and enthusiasm. This, and nothing else, was the foundation on which he has built up his great business. Mr. Noma now occupies an enviable position, being the proprietor of nine successful magazines. But he never passes a single day in idleness. Like Mr. Curtis, owner of the Saturday Evening Post, he continues to work from early morning till late in the evening with superhuman energy. In his daily programme there is no time set aside for enjoyment and recreation. The one problem which claims his whole attention at all times is how to make each issue of his magazines a better one than its predecessor. Sometimes he is an able editor, sometimes a good writer, sometimes a shrewd businessman and sometimes an expert advertiser. He gets through as much work daily as five or ten men would accom-

MOTHER TO BE HONORED BY YOUTHS

Christians, And Buddhists Join In Tribute

Leading local Japanese churches will honor Mother's Day with appropriate services and socials.

Two noteworthy events of the day will be a social get-together at the Buddhist Church and a special Mother's Day meeting sponsored by the Christian Endeavor Society.

The four young people's clubs of the Buddhist Church will combine Sunday night to present an entertaining program, which is expected to draw more than one hundred people.

A talk by the Rev. Takahashi, stunts and games, will feature the affair which is being sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., the Lotus Blossoms Club, the Y. W. B. A. and the Y. B. B. A.

Talks To Be Given

The Reformed Church's Mother's Day program is being conducted jointly by the Young People's and Intermediate Christian Endeavors, and will be featured by talks on "Mother" by Miss Stella Sato and Francis Hayashi. Several musical contributions by members and the serving of refreshments by the girls will complete the program. The meeting will start at 7:30 o'clock.

The M. E. Church will hold a special Mother's Day service in the morning, while Christ Church will hold a similar devotion in the evening. The Reformed Church, the Salvation Army, the Catholic Church, and the Episcopal Church will likewise hold special services and events in observation of the day.

Mother's Day was founded by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia. On the first anniversary—May 9, 1907—of her mother's death, she confided her ambition to have a day dedicated to all mothers. By the time another year had rolled by, she had interested numerous organizations in the cause.

The learned men of the nation are a very potent force in its government. The directors of the government schools and the principals of the normal schools are government officials, with a definite rank in civil service of the state.

The presidents of the imperial universities and certain other prominent educators are of equal personal rank with the highest officers of the empire. Many of them sit in the house of peers either as noblemen or as imperial appointees.

One of the highest honors that can be attained in Japan is membership in the Imperial Academy, which has for its object the promotion of science and art with a view to the exercise of beneficial influence on education in general.

Hundreds of Japanese athletes are expected to compete and many old records will probably fall. There will be two classes; Class A, open to all contestants; Class B, for contestants 15 years or under.

Korean Airman Killed In Fall From Aeroplane

TOKYO, May 12—(UPI)—Kyo Seiki, 23 year old Korean, spent all his life learning to be an aviator, only to be killed after he had obtained a third class pilot's license.

The Korean, a poor youth, came to Japan and hawked beans in the streets to get money to attend the Shinkawa Aeronautical School. He had been flying but a short time when his plane crashed owing to engine trouble killing himself and a passenger.

The cultural advancement of Japan through its public school system "has been phenomenal," according to the Bureau of Education, department of interior at Washington.

The bureau points out that, through the encouragement of education by the Japanese government, more than 99 per cent of the boys and girls of school age in the nation were being taught in 1922.

The best gains were in the great Consolidated Electric Power 6 1-2 s, Shinyetsu Electric Power 6 1-2 s, Oriental Development Company 6s, and in City of Tokyo 5 1-2s.

The opinion was that the selling had been out of proportion to the seriousness of the political situation.

The best gains were in the great Consolidated Electric Power 6 1-2 s, Shinyetsu Electric Power 6 1-2 s, Oriental Development Company 6s, and in City of Tokyo 5 1-2s.

The statement in part, follows in full text:

"Knowledge shall be sought for throughout the world, so that the welfare of the empire may be promoted," solemnly swore the emperor of Japan in his memorable oath of five articles, setting forth the policies to be followed henceforth by the imperial government. That was in 1868, shortly after the overlords of Japan, realizing that feudalism must be abolished and that the nation must be unified, made remarkable sacrifices of their own interests to attain those ends.

Perhaps no other nation has so persistently and continuously sent students, trained scientists, and investigators in nearly every realm of thought abroad to seek throughout the world for anything that might add to the welfare of the Japanese people. A ministry of education was established in 1872 and a code of public instruction adopted, and in 1922 at the seventeenth annual celebration of those events, the government could properly express much satisfaction at the wide diffusion of education and the progress of learning and arts during the period.

Children Receiving Instruction

Seventeen per cent of the girls and 44 per cent of the boys of school age were receiving instruction in 1874; more than 99 per cent. of both sexes were being taught in 1922; and a finely organized, complete system of public instruction was in full operation.

Besides giving instruction on all levels from kindergarten to university and inclusive of every phase of general, technical and professional training, the system directed by the ministry of education includes most of the cultural activities of the nation, such as the study of fine arts; provision and direction of libraries and museums; scientific research; maintenance of observatories; care and oversight of places of worship; and the approval of religious organizations.

The learned men of the nation are a very potent force in its government. The directors of the government schools and the principals of the normal schools are government officials, with a definite rank in civil service of the state.
