VETERAN S. F. TRADE MAN'S LIFE LAUDED

Lynch Was Pastor Before Taking up Commerce

(The following is the second of a series of life sketches of the outstanding figures in the professional and business world whose careers are a source of inspiration to all ambitious young people. These articles are printed here through the courtesy of the S. F. Bulletin.)

Meet the man who directs the huge organization that strives to make San Francisco a bigger and better place to live in—as well as the gateway of commerce on the Pacific Coast.

He is Robert Newton Lynch, vice president and general manager of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce—a position which he has held since 1912. Lynch is the dean of Chamber of Commerce heads on the Pacific Coast and there are only one or two in the country that outrank him in the point of service in the United States.

Lynch became interested in civic promotion work in a most unusual manner. He was born at Sharon Pa., and in early youth came to California in 1881.

WORKED FOR JOHNSON

He worked for several years for Grove L. Johnson, a lawyer, and the father of the United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson. The law work did not particularly appeal to Lynch so from 1896 to 1903 he attended the University of London, where he specialized in semitic languages.

Returning to California in 1903, he assumed the direction of a church in Petaluma. In addition to his church work, he became secretary of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce. His capable administration of the office led to bigger offers, and abandoning his church work he served in an executive capacity with the California State Board of Trade and various other development associations.

ACCEPTS S. F. POST

In 1912, he accepted the position of vice president and general manager of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce—a position which he still holds.

Lynch is a student of international affairs and has visited practically every country on the globe. For his work in immigration affairs in Italy, he was knighted by the King of Italy. He is also an expert on Oriental affairs.

Lynch is well qualified through his many years of experience to direct the work of the local chamber of commerce. He is considered an expert in chamber administration and the remarkable record of the local chamber is directly attributable to the leadership of Lynch.

HAS HOBBIES

Lynch's favorite hobbies are bridge and golf. He admits that he is no expert at the royal and ancient pastime. He also takes keen delight in studying international affairs. Lynch is married and lives at 3590 Clay street. His daughter, Elizabeth, 20, is a student at Stanford; Maria Ann, 17, graduates from Girls' High School this year, and Robert, Jr., 6, has just embarked on his educational career.

The meeting was called to order by Harvey Iwata of Dinuba, temporary chairman, and various matters were discussed, and decided upon.

Among them were the proposals to help Hanford, to send one of the club members to the A. L. L. meeting in Fresno as an observer, and to send as many delegates as possible to the North American Y. M. B. A. convention to be held in Fresno, the latter part of March.

Local Buddhist Girls Cage Team Lineup Is Given

The San Francisco Buddhist girls, who will meet the Oakland Sons and Daughters in the opening game of the Bay Region Girls' Basketball League Sunday afternoon at French Court, will try several new players in different positions. It was made known yesterday by Miss Leslie Suyenaga, manager of the fair sextette.

The announcement is exciting great interest among the local fans. According to a confidential report from those who know the inside "dope" of the Buddhist team, the Oakland Sons and Daughters will be disappointed if they believe they can walk away from the Y. W. B. A. six.

The players are: Madokoro Matoi, Eleanor Kanazaki, Kimi Matsumura, Leslie Suyenaga, Teru Yoshimoto (captain) forwards; Itoko Tsukada, center tap; Shizu Matsumura, center guard; Sueyoko Nakano, Miso Hashimoto, Yoshi Itatani, guards.

JAPANESE POET DEPLORES RAVAGES OF WESTERNISM

Disappearance of Tranquil and Picturesque Suburban and Country Life Laid To Invasion of Machine Age

By YONE NOGUCHI

It is only in a civilized country, I believe, that the beauty of a suburban life, not far from a city but quite near Heaven, is well preserved. No one would deny me if I say that from that point only Japan should be called a barbarous country.

The definition of barbarian is various; but my definition of it is more spiritual than physical.

When Japan of the present day plays a barbarian's tyranny that destroys the things beautiful, my mind dwells not on their physical loss but on the spiritual future of Japanese life in general. I should say the present Japanese would hardly understand such a word that the ideal of an Englishman in life is to live in a country.

Even supposing that the village life is not respected in England to that point today, I believe that the country like Japan whose dirty tomhawk defies the integrity of a suburban beauty in cold blood, is certainly a barbarous country who disgraces the old name of a land of beauty.

BANEFUL INFLUENCE What I am going to write here from my own experience is one of a hundred cases in which the so-called modernism of Japan is exerting a baneful influence on our Japanese life; my experience relates to Nakano, a suburban village not far from Tokyo, which was beautiful and quiet ten years ago, but now a human garbage where people in surplus whom Tokyo sweeps away find their little homes.

I wonder how many human garbage stand now surrounding the city of Tokyo.

Tokyo is quite a huge octopus whose avaricious greedy fingers are stretched into those garbage, and calls itself one of the greatest cities in the world.

When I moved here from Tokyo more than ten years ago, Nakano had a scenic beauty with a carpet of wheat and barley responding in

14 STUDENTS TOUR BRAZIL

Japan Kengaku Party Given Welcome In South America

TOKYO.—Brazilian people all seem to be extremely friendly toward Japan and the Japanese people.

This is the impression brought home by a party of 14 students of Keio University, who spent last summer to tour the state of San Paulo, Brazil, and returned to Yokohama during latter part of the year.

The tour was held under the auspices of the Industrial Research Society of Keio University. The party made the tour under the leadership of Ippai Kato, formerly superintendent of Keio University.

Kato spoke very enthusiastically of the tour. They were given warm receptions at every place they visited, he said, and number of social functions were tendered them by Brazilian officials.

Speaking of the Japanese children and young people in Brazil, Kato said, "There is a tendency for those born in Brazil to become persons of an easy-going and light-hearted nature because life is so easy in Brazil. Of course, those who are born in Brazil forget their mother country and have no desire to see the land of their parents, but I think it would be desirable to have them visit Japan once in a while."

14 STUDENTS TOUR BRAZIL

Japan Kengaku Party Given Welcome In South America

TOKYO.—Brazilian people all seem to be extremely friendly toward Japan and the Japanese people.

This is the impression brought home by a party of 14 students of Keio University, who spent last summer to tour the state of San Paulo, Brazil, and returned to Yokohama during latter part of the year.

The tour was held under the auspices of the Industrial Research Society of Keio University. The party made the tour under the leadership of Ippai Kato, formerly superintendent of Keio University.

Kato spoke very enthusiastically of the tour. They were given warm receptions at every place they visited, he said, and number of social functions were tendered them by Brazilian officials.

Speaking of the Japanese children and young people in Brazil, Kato said, "There is a tendency for those born in Brazil to become persons of an easy-going and light-hearted nature because life is so easy in Brazil. Of course, those who are born in Brazil forget their mother country and have no desire to see the land of their parents, but I think it would be desirable to have them visit Japan once in a while."
