ASIATIC BAN AS CURB FOR MENINGITIS

Cutting Immigration Urged by Head of Health Service

Restriction of immigration from certain Oriental ports as a step toward the prevention of the spread of spinal meningitis is proposed by Dr. Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, at Washington, D. C. He plans to take the matter up with President Hoover.

This would bring about rigid enforcement in California, Portland, Seattle and Hawaii.

In outlining his plan, Dr. Cummings expressed approval of conditions here. The disease has been closely confined to the immigrant Filipino population because these immigrants were employed on farms where they were under contract, and where they could be kept in quarantine by the state health department.

At a conference of officials of the public health service in Washington, Dr. G. W. McCoy of the United States Hygienic Laboratory declared the present knowledge of methods of controlling the disease or of dealing with human carriers are highly unsatisfactory.

The situation is particularly acute in California, he says, where Filipino immigrants have brought the disease into the country in large numbers since last fall. More than 500 cases have been reported in this state since Sept. 1, 1928. State health officers declared that almost all of these cases have come from the Philippines.

Limiting the number of immigrants from Oriental ports by cutting in half the number of steerage passengers of each ship was one measure recommended by the health officers at the conference.

Son of Japanese Pearl King Plans Culture in Hawaii

Special to The Japanese American News
HONOLULU, June 11—Cultivation of pearl oysters in Hawaiian waters was informally proposed by Takayuki Mikimoto, son of Japan's pearl king, who passed through Honolulu recently on board the Korea Maru after a trip around the world. The Hawaiian climate is ideal for pearl cultivation and pearls will probably mature in one year where three years are required in Japan, he said.

The only thing that might interfere with successful cultivation is the density of the salt water he added.

On his son of the pearl king left for Europe last year, visiting Paris where he opened a branch office of the Mikimoto firm of Tokyo.

American Talking Pictures Invade Tokyo; Misashi no Kan Theater To Ban Talkie While Others Favor It

Special to The Japanese American News
TOKYO, June 11—The talking pictures have for the first time invaded Japan this week, and they are being received with much difference of opinions in the theatrical circles here.

The Misashi no Kan, leading movie palace of the capital, today decided to quit showing the talkies after a week of trial. On the other hand both the Imperial Theater and the Hogakusa have disposed of their orchestras in order to utilize the music of the talkie dramas. The Imperial Theater is the most outstanding show house of Japan, and the Hogakusa is the theater run by the Paramount interests.

Among the talkies which have been playing here are "The Wolf Song," "In Old Arizona," and the grim melodrama of the tropics, "The Letter."

The test of the talkies as a permanent institution in Japan is not in these showings of American-made films. It is indicated here, as these pictures have talking sequences in English, which are understood only by a relatively small portion of the theater-goers. While some enterprising producers are looking forward to talking films in Japanese, it is the general belief that some time will elapse before facilities can be obtained to produce them.

Jiro Kumagai, one of Showa representatives in the pugilistic world, kept on pounding and knocked down Albert Lung, pride of the Chinese Y. M. C. A. and the undisputed simon pure champ of the downtown Oriental quarters, in a sensational bout of the P. A. A. junior semi-finals Monday night at the Dreamland Auditorium.

The Sino-Japanese fight started with an exchange of telling punches on both sides, but the Chinese boy weakened under the lively clip of the Japanese. Referee Bobby Johnson stepped in to stop the onslaught in the middle of the opening round.

STUPENDOUS VITALITY OF JAPAN IMPRESSES WRITER

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

(The author of this article is a member of the American Journalists' party now in Japan under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. He is a representative of the Scripps Howard Newspapers—Editor)

My first impression of Tokyo? I must resort to metaphor even to approximate them.

I feel as though my head were a movie camera, my eyes lenses, my brain a film. Thus, on the film of my brain a colossal number of pictures, amazing in their variety, have registered themselves and until I have time to enter my dark room and quietly develop them I shall scarcely be able to describe what I've got.

First of all, however, I should say that what has impressed me most is the stupendous vitality of the Japanese people. They are moving forward faster, I believe, than any other people in the world today. Americans are known as hustlers. Japanese are super-hustlers. Tokyo's magnificent reconstruction. Soon she will be one of the most modern and most beautiful cities in the world. Her young Mayor reminds me of Jimmy Walker, de-bonair Mayor of New York.

Also your great newspapers upon which, as in our country, popular education and international accord so much depend. And your universities, financial and industrial establishments, hospitals, beautiful homes, social welfare work, and so on. All these have impressed me enormously.

But above all, as I started out by saying, it is the tremendous driving force and smiling courage of your hospitable people, ready and able to overcome any and all obstacles that are the greatest qualities any people can have.

Miss Takezawa First Woman to Be Sent On Study Trip

TOKYO, June 11—The honor of being the first Japanese woman to be sent abroad to study medical science as a government student goes to Miss Sadako Takezawa, now a research student at the Medical College, Tokyo Imperial University.

Miss Takezawa, who is a native of Aichi prefecture was graduated from the Tokyo Women's Medical College in 1926, since which time she has been doing research work under Professor Takagi at the Tokyo Imperial University, specializing in orthopedics. She has already established her name in the medical world of this country by a number of these on the treatment of dislocation in children.

The Department of Education has selected Miss Takezawa as a research student to go abroad to study medical science. She expects to sail from Yokohama for Germany by the N. Y. K. liner Hakosaki Maru in August or September this year. She will remain two years in Germany.

"When I go to Germany, I intend to study the treatment of cripples," Miss Takezawa says. "I shall go alone and stay for two years. I have been deeply interested in children which is my reason for taking up this branch of science."

"After finishing the Nagoya First City Girls' High, I came to Tokyo and entered the Tokyo Women's Medical College, and studied under Madame Yayoi Yoshikawa. At present I am living at Madame Mori's girls' home."

When she completes her research work on dislocation among children, Miss Takezawa is expected to receive the degree of "Igakui Hakushi" (Doctor of Medicine), and will thus be the first Japanese woman to receive the high degree. She is 27 years old.

Kindness of Mrs. Hoover To Nippon Davis Aces Noted

WASHINGTON, June 10—Herbert C. Plummer, a newspaper correspondent here, in one of his daily syndicated articles broadcasted throughout the country, takes note of great interest Mrs. Herbert Hoover has shown the Japanese contenders in the recent Davis Cup tennis held here. The article, in part reads:

"Just one more reason why Mrs. Herbert Hoover is called one of the most popular and gracious of our first ladies:

Japan and the United States were engaged in the Davis Cup tennis matches at the Chevy Chase club.

"John Hennessey, the American star, had defeated Tamiro Abe in a hard fought match that lasted four sets. Heralded as the most formidable of his country's tennis stars, Abe felt his defeat keenly.

"Mrs. Hoover witnessed the match from her box. She had been an enthusiastic spectator, and repeatedly applauded the outstanding plays of the participants.

"While the gallery was applauding the victor Mrs. Hoover was seen to be writing. Shortly afterward a message was sent to the box nearby, occupied by the Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debutch. The message was, in effect:

"Tamiro Abe gave a worthy and skillful performance of the sport so dearly loved by his countrymen.

"It is doubtful if a Davis cup match ever was witnessed by a more distinguished and colorful gallery than the one which followed the play of the Americans and the Japanese.

"There was Mrs. Hoover. The Japanese ambassador and Mme. Debutch were in attendance at all of the contests. The ambassador of Spain and his daughters, Senorita Maria Padilla and Senorita Ross Padilla, were there."

Treaty Submitted To His Majesty For Acceptance

DEBATE SEEN IN COUNCIL

Special to The Japanese American News
TOKYO, June 11—Premier Gichiro Tanaka today submitted the Kellogg Anti-War Pact to the Emperor for ratification.

The treaty was accompanied by the declaration that the phrase, "in the name of the respective peoples," as contained in the pact, is contradictory to article 13 of the Japanese constitution, and that the Imperial Government understands that this phrase does not apply to the Japanese Empire.

The note of ratification provides that the government ratifies the Kellogg pact with the above declaration.

While technically a declaration is not a reservation, political observers here regard the two as having the same effect. Tanaka's final consent to attach a declaration is regarded as a signal triumph of the oppositionists in the Privy Council who have denounced the Cabinet for having jeopardized the fundamental constitutional principles of the Empire.

OBTAINS SANCTION

They contended that Japan cannot ratify the instrument "in the name of the respective peoples" for the reason that constitutionally the sovereignty does not rest with the people but with the Emperor.

Premier Tanaka, the stormy petrel of Japan and a man of unconventional tactics, today submitted the pact without calling a cabinet, to the surprise of many who had expected more discussion over this much controverted point. He had made a round of calls on the ministers and obtained their sanction individually.

Immediately upon receiving the pact the Emperor referred it to the Privy Council, which is His Majesty's chief advisory body. The Council at once appointed a special committee of nine members to pass on it and render a report.

UCHIDA TO RESIGN

That the pact will not have a smooth sailing in the Council is generally conceded. Veteran observers are of the opinion that, while much ado will be made of Premier Tanaka's diplomatic blunder, the pact will be finally ratified with the attached declaration, which was made a condition of ratification through the insistence of the oppositionists. But the Premier is likely to receive a sound admonition from the Council in the form of a censuring resolution. Added complication is expected in the probability that Count Kosei Uchida, who had been sent to Paris to sign the pact, will resign from the Privy Council. He is understood to be contemplating this course, as he feels that the responsibility for the failure of the pact to be ratified unconditionally lies with himself. The resignation of Uchida will then vault the responsibility to Premier Tanaka who had sent him to Paris.
