S.F. Prepares Huge Fete For Japanese Navy

Community Picnic At Ewing Field Will Mark Welcome

When the Japanese Imperial training squadron, consisting of cruisers Iwate and Asama, steams into this port, on August 16, San Francisco will accord it a welcome worthy of its tradition as a city that "knows how."

With this spirit in mind a special committee composed of leading local Japanese residents is mapping out a program of extensive welcome during the five days the Japanese midshipmen will be here.

The program culminates in a huge picnic, to be held at Ewing Field. The entire Japanese community is expected to turn out for this outdoor affair, which will in all probability be marked by a series of athletic events to test the prowess of the future Japanese admirals against local youths.

RECEPTION IN STORE

With the support of leading business houses and many religious and educational bodies, the committee expects to stage this picnic in a grand style. Scheduled for earlier in the season, the picnic was postponed in order to convert it into a welcome demonstration for the naval visitors. The children as well as parents, boys as well as girls, will make the day merry with thrilling races and games. It will be a celebration of much color and gaiety.

Another affair, in the form of a banquet, to be staged in the Kimon Auditorium on Bush street, will mark the week of the sailors' welcome. Pretty welcome badges, designed by Secretary Badges, of the local Japanese Association, will be worn by the hosts to denote their cordiality.

The committee or arrangement, composed of representatives of the Japanese Association, the consulate, and the Japanese Chamber of Commerce, is making provisions for the entire four days of the visitors' sojourn here.

Mystery of Chang Death Cleared at 1st Anniversary

MUKDEN, Manchuria, July 6.—The official fiction that old Marshal Chang Tso-lin, one-time dictator of Manchuria and North China, lived seventeen days after the bombing of his train on the outskirts of Mukden June 4 last year, has been abandoned. No statement marked the discarding of this story, which served for more than a year to baffle the facts of the tragedy, but it was noted that the Buddhist services commemorating the anniversary of the death were held on the date in the old-style calendar corresponding to the anniversary of June 4, 1928.

BELIEF UNSUBSTANTIAL

Hence it is certain that Marshal Chang died the day of the bombing. This belief has been widely held but it could not be proved. For seventeen days after the bombing the old Marshal's household issued almost daily bulletins describing his supposed condition. But in this period the son and heir, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, completed the political arrangements insuring that he should inherit his father's titles and powers, and on June 21 young Chang announced that the old Marshal had died that morning.

15 PRIESTS HOLD SERVICE

But this year, on the seventeenth day of the Fourth Moon by the old calendar, fifteen Buddhist priests from a famous temple outside the walls of Mukden went to the official residence of the war lord of Manchuria and held the anniversary services.

of the Russo-Japanese War, left Yokosuka naval base near Tokyo on July 1. They will reach Honolulu on July 18, where an appropriate welcome by the Japanese people there is in store. The squadron will then proceed to Seattle, arriving at that port on August 3. From there it will sail to Tacoma, Vancouver, San Francisco, and San Pedro. In the latter port they will anchor for five days, from August 22 to 27. After leaving California the two warships will cruise to Balboa, Colombo, Baltimore, New York, Coton, Mazatlan, Haiti, Yalu and Trat Islands. It will return to its home port of Yokosuka in December after having traversed a total of 24,828 nautical miles. It will be under the command of Vice-Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura.

FLORIN GIRLS AND BUSSEIS ENJOY PICNIC

Temple Sunday School Sponsors Outing To Tara's Lake

Special to The Japanese American News

FLORIN, July 10.—An all-day picnic, with swimming, fishing, and games as the chief recreation, was enjoyed by the members and friends of the local Buddhist Sunday School last Sunday at Tara's Lake near Elk Grove.

Two hundred Sunday School children, together with their parents and friends, gathered before the Buddhist Church and motored to their destination amid cheerful laughter and songs. The Y. W. B. A. and the Shijo Kwan acted as guardians for this annual affair.

OUR JUNIOR SECTION

George Nagatani sends us two capital jokes. And he tells us where they came from. Good for us! We are fast learning how to be authors.

But you other Juniors, we are waiting for your letters and jokes and riddles. Maybe when we spoke of not having all the space we sometimes wish we had, you got discouraged. That is not a bit necessary. Even when we have lots of letters from Juniors waiting to be acknowledged, we get space for them by just waiting several days. And besides, there is now the whole Junior Page in the WEEKLY. As soon as we know that you get the WEEKLY we can give Obasan the letters from Juniors who see the WEEKLY if we have no room to answer them here.

So write to us. Hurry up. Please.

CLUB ENJOYS WEINER FETE IN REEDLEY

Fresno Young People Guests of E. L. At Beach Party

Special to The Japanese American News

FAIRFIELD (Solano Co.), July 9.—Urban Rivera, a Filipino, charged his plea of not guilty to one of guilty today while jurors were being selected to try him on a charge of murder in the death of K. Nishimura, a Japanese.

"Oh gee, my stick has caught fire and my Weiner has fallen."

"I'm sick of ice cream; I don't want to see it again."

Such were the expressions heard at the Weiner Roast and Swimming Party given by the Reedley Fellowship, an organization which was organized few months ago, with the Fresno Epworth League members as their guests on the Reedley Beach on Saturday, July 6.

From about three o'clock in the afternoon, the young people gathered about the beach, and in no time, all were in the cool waters with the old sol smiling upon the happy faces. When any member of the party became thirsty, they just had to go on the sand bar to get a sip of the cool lemonade, which was prepared by the Reedley girls. It was at the time that the sun had set in the glowing west that the young swimmers left the water. Now, the time had come for the boys to get busy preparing for the roast. Some of the boys gathered woods for the fire, and others set out with their knives to make weiner sticks for the whole group.

When the bonfire was built, the girls as well as the boys began roasting the poor puppies until they were so filled that they were sick of them. Then, came the ice-cream and "osembels," a dish that is a treat to everyone. They were given the second treat, the third treat, the fourth treat—until they did not want to see ice cream again.

Few games were played; among them the "Flyng Dutchman" proved to be the most popular one. In order to quench the thirst, soda waters were then served.

Once more, they swam and dived about in the river. Later, a short service was held around the bonfire, and tired but happy, the merrymakers left for their respective homes.

It was reported that, although the mosquitoes were numerous and took away some of their weight, that most of them gained at least five pounds as the result of the tempting refreshments and the fine appetites produced by the swimming.

sophistry like the face of Premier Hamaguchi."

To make extravagant statements at this time without calling a special session of the Diet or dissolving the old Diet is ridiculously improper, continues Mori, who further declares that the Liberal's generalities about promoting "endless economic development between this country and China" amounts to utter folly. The Cabinet gives no warning on method to combat the anti-Japanese boycott which is paralyzing international trade.

On the disarmament question the new Cabinet expresses great optimism, declaring that there is no insurmountable barrier to a complete understanding among the powers for limitation of naval armaments, inasmuch as there already exists a naval holiday and the present movement is merely for an extension of that holiday.

The platform also advocates financial retrenchment, reorganization of national life and energy for the task of reconstruction.

Kaku Mori, the political vice-minister of foreign affairs during Tanaka's regime, today characterized the Liberal platform as a "specie of silkworms."

In order to bring about drastic changes in the Sunday school system of this church a committee was chosen to investigate and study the systems employed in some of the other Japanese churches about the Bay district. The committee members include: Rev. J. R. Fujii, Yoneo Taniguchi, Josephine Yamamoto, Shozo Fujii, James Hanamura, Shozo Fujii and Haruo Imura, who were appointed to arrange the program.

Silk is Japan's principal export and the United States buys about 80 per cent of all she produces. And, as American buyers—the wearers of the raw silk and the wearers of the finished product—are exigent in their demands, the silk industry in Japan is frankly run to suit Americans.

I have just had a look at this ancient, yet still increasing, business of sericulture, from the caterpillar to the silk-laden ships of this busy port.

Nothing is left to chance at any stage. Every phase is carefully watched not only by private concerns but by the Japanese government, which puts its guarantees on virtually every skein of silk that leaves the island.

CULTIVATED AND WILD

Japanese silk is both of the cultivated and wild variety. The wild

cocoon is mostly yellow or green

and produces tussah and such silks.

The cultivated worm is a pedigree fellow, his ancestry having been very carefully controlled.

If you happen to be wearing a pair of American made silk stockings,

or socks, or undies, at this moment, they are almost surely the product of a cross between a Japanese and a Chinese silk worm. The Japanese worm was found to produce a stronger fiber and the Chi-

inese a finer one, so they were crossed to produce a finer and

stronger thread.

CAREFUL WATCHING

These worms are carefully watched over after being hatched, and are fed on the choicest of specially cultivated mulberry leaves, carefully

minced and placed in little shallow

trays kept in hot houses.

Thus cocoons are produced. The silkworms are put in hot water at a given time and the silk thread, about the size of a spider's web, is un-

wound from them by machinery,

four or five such threads being twisted into one. Silk from the cocoons is said to be stronger than a copper wire of the same size.

Inside skeins of standard size

and shape, determined by the demands of the American trade, the raw silk thus prepared is sent to the Japanese government silk conditioning house at Yokohama.

Silk, like everything else, may be

even rough, strong of fiber or weak,

clean or hairy, and so on.

Silk also absorbs more or less

moisture, depending upon where it is produced. Or it picks up moisture en route to the United States,

giving rise to disputes over net

weights.

So the Japanese government has arranged to put the silk business on a strictly scientific basis so buyers

will know precisely what they are

Filipino Killer Of Nishimura in Plea of Guilty
