YOSHIE FUJIWARA WRITES ABOUT HIS WIFE AND ART

(Continued from yesterday) I was told on my arrival in New York that the people of Los Angeles were old fashioned and that as a consequence they might not take well to the idea of my having married a divorcee. But, on arriving in the city, I was surprised to find my old friends welcoming me with open arms and all but overjoyed over my marriage. Of course, many Japanese people in the city objected to my marriage, but ignoring these folk, my friends staged a concert for me. My fortune, as I have frequently said, is not my voice or the money that accrues therefrom, but my friends. It was because of these friends that the concert in Los Angeles was a grand success. Seldom have I sung before such a large and appreciative audience.

GUADALUPE TO SHOW Historic Japanese Film July 27, 28

GUADALUPE, July 23—Under the title of "Takahama Tokiwa," a semi-classical play dealing with the stirring events of the reign of Tokugawa Shoguns will be screened here Saturday and Sunday evenings July 27 and 28, at the local Nippon Hall. Another film, "Romance of a High School Girl," will also be screened. The show starts at seven o'clock.

FLU INTO MY ARMS

But as I have already stated, my appendicitis seemed to have shrunk away and I was in no hurry to return. At this time I received telegrams from New York with regard to my appearance in the talkies. I therefore turned about face and returned once more to New York arriving in that city on March 28. I left for Europe from here on April 2, and a week after arriving in Europe we met again. Akiko could hardly hide her happiness as she was going to Paris, and she flew into my arms in tears. I wanted to take her to Paris and give her a good time, but she did not seem to care much for the gay French capital. Therefore, as there was still the question of my studying, we both left for Milan.

HAPPY WITH WIFE

Here we lived at a hotel. Naturally I am not a very welcome guest at any hotel for the reason that I sing each morning. It is my custom to sing two hours each day, once in the morning from 11 o'clock until noon, and again in the afternoon. In the morning I sing the classics while in the afternoon I study the opera. I wanted to live apart from my wife during my studies or at least until I completed my opera, but I discovered on living with Akiko for a while that she was no hindrance. In fact, she did me a lot of good. We laughed together so often. She was such a happy wife. She would speak in her broken French and made us all burst into laughter.

BUT COSTLY TOO

Akiko wanted to take up the study of music but I was opposed to this. I asked her to keep to golf, her painting, (for she is quite well-known in Japan as a painter), and her French. As far as music is concerned, I'd think a singer's wife need not know much more than to

Bromley Gets Assurance of Tokio Welcome

TACOMA, Wash., July 23—(UP)—If Lieut. Harold Bromley is forced down in his lone non-stop from Tacoma to Tokyo he will "float like a cork and use the radio to signal the world," he told the United Press today.

Safety Device to Enable U. S. Flier to Float Like Cork

TACOMA, Wash., July 23—(UP)—The swarthy Canadian-American aviator seemed little worried by thoughts of fog, rocks and ice he might meet along the great circle route as he supervised final repairs on his orange-colored monoplane before taking off Friday or Saturday on the 4,700 mile span of the "I'll have enough gasoline to fly to Japan—and I expect to reach my goal," Bromley said.

NEW N. Y. K. LINER Model Unveiled at Fairmont Today

San Francisco civic leaders and a number of shipping men will attend a ceremonial in the lobby of the Fairmont Hotel at 12:30 p. m. today, when a model of the 10,000-ton Yusei Kaisha's motorship, Asama Maru, is unveiled. Mayor Ralph, Major Charles Tilden, president of the harbor board; Consul General Morikazu Iida and Takao Yamamoto, manager of the N. Y. K., will lead the ceremony. The model was built in Japan at a cost of $10,000, and is a faithful reproduction of the motorship which was recently launched and will make her maiden voyage on the Pacific next fall, arriving here October 28.

THE ASAMA MARU IS ONE OF THREE MOTOR LINERS BEING BUILT BY THE N. Y. K. FOR THE CALIFORNIA-ORIENT TRADE.

The Asama Maru is the first of the trio, each of which are to cost $8,000,000. These new Diesel-propelled ships will be the fastest in the trans-Pacific run via Honolulu, and their accommodations will be the last word in luxury and efficient service.
