mob psychology is exploited for their own advantage by certain individuals. You permit ideas to be fastened upon you by the mere force of repetition, as in an election, when a candidate's bare name appears over and over again on the billboards, without any argument or logic whatever showing why he might be the best person for the position sought.

loud noises of this era back to something that has more beauty. Men require to be conducted once more to the abodes of happiness. But the essentials of happiness are fragile and the loud and noisy life is destructive to them. We want more simplicity.
