HEIYO MARU DUE TODAY

Arrival of the motorship Heiyo Maru, new $4,000,000 flagship of the Japan Mail Line's South American fleet, will be the focal point of water-front attention Friday.

The vessel is the fourth new carrier sent out by the company in seven months, the other three being the Asama Maru, Chichibu Maru and Tatsuta Maru, each built at a cost of $7,000,000.

Unlike the larger ships the Heiyo Maru does not immediately return from this port, but continues down the coast as far as Valparaiso, Chile. A large passenger list is aboard for the maiden voyage.

The swift, compact liner is expected to make a strong bid for passenger travel to the South American ports. Beneath her slanting twin stacks are five decks, accommodating forty-two first class, eighty second class and 500 third pmfw passengers.

Powered with huge Sulzer Diesel engines, the Heiyo Maru is capable of eighteen ocean-going knots. It is the largest ship ever built at the Osaka Iron Works in Japan, having a 18,000 ton displacement, with cargo capacity of 10,600 tons. The length is 460 feet and the beam sixty feet.

Four other vessels are already operated on the South American run, via San Francisco, by the Japan Mail Line.

Native Japan Music Pales Before Flood of Western Jazz

Special To the Japanese American News TOKYO, May 29—Japanese jazz is sweeping through the Land of the Rising Sun and the twanging samisen is on the decline.

Japanese jazz has already gained in popularity to the extent that it occupies about 60% of the program, the other half being the American counterpart. Sheikh looking Japanese youth do tap dancing and patter syncopated songs the words of which are all Japanese.

Japanese jazz songs such as "The Dotonbori March," "The Asakusa March," "The Black Pudding" and "The Girl of Beniya" are now being published in great quantities.

Educators in the country are becoming alarmed at the declining demand for the "gunka" or soldiers' war songs and the "shoka" or Japanese school songs. Students of Japanese schools and colleges are organizing bands and orchestras, and almost every Japanese citizen goes about humming or whistling some popular air, "Yes Sir, She's My Baby" is momentarily the favorite.

Curiously enough, "Home Sweet Home" is known to almost all Japanese—in the all-English version.

RELIGION'S DILEMMA

By GLENN FRANK
The essence of religion is that it upholds the dignity of the individual.

Religion insists that human personality is the most important thing in the world.

Religion strives to keep the universe warm and intimate and personal.

And the reason that religion is having such a hard time just now is that the world is growing over more impersonal as two forces more and more take control of affairs.

These two forces are: Modern intellectualism. Modern industrialism.

"The plight of religion in our own day," says Reinhold Niebuhr, "is due to the fact that it has been more than ordinarily pressed by forces on the two lines on which it defends the dignity and value of personality.

"The sciences have greatly complicated the problem of maintaining the personalization of the universe by which religion guarantees the worth of human personality; and science applied to the world's work has created a type of society in which human personality is easily debased.

War Council Meets to Discuss Points Relative to Treaty

Special To the Japanese American News TOKYO, May 29—The War Council, was unofficially called at the special request of Minister of the Navy Takarabe today at the residence of the minister. Among those present were Admiral Prince Fushimi, Fleet Admiral Togo, Admiral Keisuke Okada, former Minister of the Navy and Admiral Kato head of the Naval Board.

Takarabe first explained the London Treaty in detail. He was followed by Admiral Sakonji, chief advisor to the Conference. Then Kanji Kato, head of the Naval Board, explained the attitude of the Naval Board.

The conference continued for five hours but no satisfaction was reached concerning the chief problems.

The chief questions are: (1) Is it possible to maintain an adequate national defense under the London Treaty? (2) Is it necessary to obtain the consent of the Naval Board before signing a treaty which concerns human matters?

Evidently another deadlock has occurred.

Today Admiral Kato expressed no intention of resigning, although rumors to that effect are current.

Japan Suffers from Business Depression Says Trade Expert

Almost all the commercial news brought from the Far East Wednesday by Trade Commissioner George C. Howard of Manila was pessimistic. Arriving on the steamer President Madison, he said:

"Japan is suffering a depression as a result of a poor silk market. The city of Tokyo is bankrupt and unable to meet payments on its municipal bonds. China is having hard times because silver, the monetary unit, is low, and the revolution is disrupting trade. Hawaiians are depressed over a low sugar tariff, and India is in the throes of the Gandhi revolt."

"Although 1929 was the best year the Philippines ever had, business is now slack."

JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLUB

BIRTHDAYS—Eddie Hisao Aburamen, Elsie Osie Masai
Here is the last part of that jolly letter:

I know it's going to be a mighty big thrill this fall when I get my name stuck on top of the mast-head. Then I'll be able to look at you Weekly and say, "Well, Obasan, I'm an editor too."

(Newspaper people have queer names for some things. A "mast-head" in a paper means the place where the names of publishers and editors and the subscription prices, address, and such things are given.

Obasan. Junior
Only a couple of thousand more words and I'd have a home. I'd better say my adios.

I won't be able to write for a while now. I'm going to get a job as field boss on a strawberry ranch as soon as school's over.

By the way, Obasan, since you won't be able to use this letter, won't you please ask Club members and otherwise to write to me? I'll answer all letters if I don't die before then. I owe several important answers now as it is.

Well, a letter is a letter, but this epistle is a short story. Out wuferschen.

Sayonara,
Kay Yasui,
212 Third Street, Hood River, Oregon.

Is that the person that you guessed as the writer? Maybe some of you don't know Kay's writing well enough yet to recognize it. We took the last thing he sent for the Weekly, you know. We congratulate Kay over his editorship, don't we? And we surely wish him well in that and everything. But I'm sorry about the football. What athletics will you be able to take, Kay?

Letters are here from Mary, Sumiko and Alice Korenaga, who have moved. Their new address is Route 3, Box 206-A, Provo, Utah. We'll tell you what else they said soon.

Welcome to this NEW MEMBER: Mutsuko Koga, age 13, grade 8, address 72 Chestnut street, Gilroy, California. Be sure to welcome her, won't you? She especially asks for letters.

L. A. MOTHER KILLS SELF, 3 CHILDREN

Grim Tragedy Laid to Mental Ailment of Mrs. Matsumoto

Special To the Japanese American News LOS ANGELES, May 29—What is termed the most startling tragedy in the memory of local Japanese occurred yesterday when Mrs. Kimiko Matsumoto, 46, thought to have been mentally deranged by hysteria, slew her three children with a razor and then committed suicide.

THE DEAD
MRS. KIMIKO MATSUMOTO, mother.
HARUE, 3-months-old baby girl.
SUERO, two-year-old daughter.
NARIYUKI, four-year-old son.

The grim drama took place yesterday, probably about ten o'clock in the morning, at her home, 821 South Garfield Street, Alhambra.

The father, Fukujiro Matsumoto, 46, who had been on a round of work as gardener in American residences, returned home for lunch and found the bed room strewn with blood, four bodies being sprawled lifeless about the bed. The children were already cold, but the mother was still warm.

Three other children escaped the tragedy because they were away at Ramona public school. They are the eldest son, Masachiro, 16; second son, Asaji, 7; and eldest daughter, Natsuko, 9 years old.

"STRANGELY QUIET"
When interviewed by this paper, Fukujiro Matsumoto, the father of the children, declared that the whole incident seemed to him like a bad dream.

"When I left in the morning, my wife was washing the children's clothes in the back yard. When I returned at noon, the home was strangely quiet, and no cheerful voices of children greeted me as I entered the front door.

"When I entered the bed room, a sea of blood greeted me."
The funeral services will be held next Sunday afternoon from one o'clock at the Hann Undertakers in Alhambra.

Mrs. Matsumoto's violent deed is attributed to sudden mental derangement resulting from ailments due to her recent child birth.
