The American Legion of California in a statement Tuesday demanded the exclusion of all aliens ineligible to citizenship.

James K. Kirk, state adjutant of the American Legion and chairman of the Joint Immigration Committee composed of the legion, the legion, the State Federation of Labor and the Native Sons of the Golden West said:

"It should be remembered that during the consideration of this legislation in 1924, and after the enactment of the immigration restriction act, Japanese leaders declared that quota alone would not satisfy Japan and that she would ultimately expect the same treatment for her nationals as accorded to the Europeans, including the right of citizenship.

INTER-NATIONAL PARLEY WILL OPEN AT U. C.

Institute Lasts From Aug. 8 to 5 In Berkeley

Special to The Japanese American News BERKELEY, June 1.—Bringing to Berkeley governmental and diplomatic officials from nations in all parts of the Pacific area, the sixth session of the Institute of International Relations will be held on the University of California campus August 8 to August 15, it was announced yesterday by administrative officials of the university.

The institute, which will be packed by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, will be a feature of the summer session of the University scheduled for June 30 to August 9. Invitations to participate will be mailed to hundreds of leaders in international affairs within the next week or two, it is announced.

Officers of the institute, whose appointments were made known yesterday are: Chancellor, Dr. Robert Gordon Spruill; president-elect of the University; treasurer, Luther A. Nichols, assistant comptroller of the University; and director, Dr. Robert Ingram Frisley, professor of history at the University.

ADVISORS

On the board of advisors for the institute are Dr. George H. Blaslee, professor of international relations at Clark University; General Tasker H. Bliss, member of the American commission to negotiate peace, 1917-18; Pres.-elect Spruill; John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for president of the U. S. in 1924 and ambassador extraordinary to Great Britain, 1918-21.

Dr. Robert Millikan, director of the California Institute of Technology; Dr. Chester H. Rowell, recipient and publisher; and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Department of the Interior.

Director Priestly explains that the institute seeks, by bringing distinguished students of affairs from abroad and from other parts of the United States, to become acquainted at first hand with variant views on current international matters. By the round table discussion, general conference and special lecture, it offers the fruit of sound study, observation and travel and ripe experience to an internationally minded group desirous of keeping abreast with affairs.

While membership in the institute is by invitation, friends who desire that invitations be extended to persons known by them to be qualified to participate in the program are asked to send their names to the director of the Institute of International Relations, University of California. Also special evening lectures, every night during the meeting, will be open to the public.

The idea of holding institutes of international relations was first put into practice in 1921, as a result of the World War, in Williamstown, Mass. The first Pacific Coast institute was held in Riverside in 1926, at the instigation of Dr. Rufus B. von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

By SHIN SHU LOW read no Hamlets. They rather have things dramatized in comedy scenarios of Hollywood.

It is difficult to explain to Americans the real situation existing between the new ruler Carol and Princess Helen. Helen has not as yet reconciled. Carol becomes impatient. It is reported that Carol threatened the princess by telling her that he will bring his former sweetheart Lupescu to his side.

The Americans love no Hamlets. The Rumanian regal drama centers around the struggles of royal powers, but the Americans censor those scenes and see only the scenes that are packed with force of love.

KATO QUILTS AS HEAD OF NAVY BOARD

Admiral M. Takiguchi, Head of Kure Base, Is Successor

Special to The Japanese American News TOKYO, June 1.—The resignation of Kanji Kato was formally announced here today. In an audience with the Emperor, Kato, chief of the Navy General Board, made known his desire for resignation. Takarabe, Minister of the Navy, was called in for consultation and recommended that the resignation be accepted.

Kanji Kato has been appointed to become a member of the supreme war council.

Admiral M. Takiguchi, at present commander of the Kure Naval Base, is to succeed Kato as head of the General Board.

Admiral Kato's resignation came as a result of a clash of opinion between Kato and Takarabe as regards appropriation of the surplus money arising from the navy cut provided in the London treaty. Kato heading the Naval Board, demanded large funds for an enlargement program of the Navy air fleet. Takarabe opposed this policy as violation of the London navy limitations treaty.

Takarabe reported to Premier Hamaguchi that he would not resign until the naval reorganization was accomplished as provided for by the Treaty.

PERSONAL RELATIONSHIP

As it happened, the best friend in Washington of Mr. Castle was David A. Reed (R.), Senator from Pennsylvania, and member of the American delegation. These families are so intimate that they are building homes together side by side on S Street in the section where the Wilson and Hoover homes stand. While Mr. Reed was landing in London, the temporary Ambassador was presenting his credential in Tokyo.

Now comes the second phase in this story of personal relationships. On the Japanese delegation at London was Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to Great Britain. As it happened, prior to going to his post in London, Mr. Matsudaira was Ambassador in the United States. Among his friends in the latter city was the same David A. Reed, from Pennsylvania. They had known each other socially, they understood and trusted each other.

LOGICAL CANDIDATE The time came to pick a member from each delegation to take up the function of Japanese-T. S. negotiations, whose success was essential to any achievement by the whole conference. Almost inevitably Mr. Reed and Mr. Matsudaira were paired off for the delicate task. They met in the conference room as they had met on the links.

Finally the last stage of the negotiations was reached. The tentative agreement was sent to Tokyo for approval. It was here that Mr. Castle's ability as exponent of the American view was brought into full play, particularly when it appeared for a time that the Japanese big navy group would reject the pact.

With victory finally won, and the good relations of nations advanced by the friendly feelings of individuals, the sport writer's phraseology still seems most expressive, in the term—"Double play, International Distrust and Suspicion—Hoover to Reed to Castle."

PERFUME AND THE MALE

By GLENN FRANK

Most of us dislike and decree of effeminate a perfumed male. And yet, if the American Druggist is to be believed, the busy and bustling American male is buying more perfume, powder, creams, and cosmetics generally every year.

Does this mean the feminization of the American man? Naturally the druggists will not admit that it does.

They insist that the last hundred years have been the only considerable period in history when men as a class have gone without cosmetics to aid their toilet.

And this, the druggists insist, has been true simply because in the 1800's American men were living the primitive life of the frontier in which many refinements were perforce abandoned—books, music, silks, linens, as well as perfumes and powders in which their Colonial male ancestors revelled.

The eighteenth and early nineteenth century English gentleman left a trailing scent of pomander as he backed gracefully out of the drawing room.

The sixteenth century English gentleman saturated himself with perfume as readily as any Venetian lady of the period. Napoleon went heavily perfumed to social affairs.

When W. H. Hudson, the naturalist and prose master extraordinary, returned from his life in primitive
