協調したい三井側の意見

輸入館の値段は、日本から指圖するべきである。三井物産は、米の輸入に際しては、常に日本からの指圖を求めている。これは、日本が米の最大の消費国であるため、日本の米価が世界の相場を決定するからである。三井は、日本の米価が安ければ、輸入の利益が増える。逆に、日本の米価が高ければ、輸入の利益が減る。したがって、三井は、日本の米価を安く保つことを常に目指している。

CASTLE JR., BACK FROM TOKYO, FAVORS MOVE TO PUT JAPAN UNDER QUOTA

New Envoy Forbes Praised as Man Suited to Smooth Relations Between Nations of Diverse Cultures, Treaty Lauded

The move initiated in Washington by Representative Albert Johnson, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, to include Japan in the quota law, was given strong support by William Castle Jr., ambassador extraordinary to Tokyo, who arrived in San Francisco Thursday aboard the Matson Liner Malolo.

Characterizing the Occidental exclusion provisions of the Immigration act of 1924 as a "great mistake," Castle expressed his hope that Congress will take appropriate steps to place Japan under quota and thus relieve a six-year tension between the two greatest countries in the Pacific basin.

"Japan has a galaxy of eminent statesmen," he continued, "and not the least of them is the former ambassador to the United States, Mr. Masano Hanihara. Having kept silent for six years over an issue in which he was a prominent figure, the Japanese diplomat waited for an opportune moment to express his conviction. I am heartily in accord with the general principle of including Japan in the quota."

When questioned as to his views on the qualification of Cameron Forbes as ambassador to Japan, Castle replied that the former governor general of the Philippines was eminently fitted to represent the United States at Tokyo.

He added, Forbes possesses wide knowledge of the Orient, Castle said. On the subject of the London naval treaty, the ambassador to Tokyo believes that the three major powers have each sacrificed for a common good.

"The fact that nobody in the naval circles of the three powers is satisfied is patent proof that no nation suffered a bad bargain, he said. More important than the material savings effected by this treaty—and the savings amount to a considerable figure—is the sense of friendship that resulted from the endeavor to cut down the common burden of taxation, said Castle.

While in Tokyo, Castle delivered an address, in the course of which he described the operations of the navy in the three countries. At that time, he said that the naval expert is a specialist, and his field has to be limited if he is to be a good expert. For this reason, he continued, ultimate decisions should be made by those whose business it is to know the temper of nations and international situations.

GLOOMY PROPHECIES

"There are men in all three, to be sure, who are discussing what might happen if something else happened, on some unforeseen occasion. One man, for example, testified before the naval committee of the American Senate that the United States has put itself through this agreement, in a position inferior to Japan and that we have sold out to England, the inference being that in another war America will be destroyed."

"Talk of this kind will permanently influence no one. No nation sold out to any other because all the delegates were patriotic men. Such gloomy prophecies are of course, accepted as truth by those who are ready to believe them and are as stoutly denied by those who measure national safety more by the good will of their neighbors than by the number of their guns."

"There are others who say the Conference failed because it did not accomplish much more. This also is a fallacy. Those who have studied the history of human progress know that permanent reforms come slowly. Of course there are times when a nation moves very quickly under the inspiration of truly great men—the Emperor Meiji was one of these. George Washington was another. But as a rule reform and progress results from the slow process of national education."

SLOW BUT FORWARD MOVE

"A government cannot go forward very much faster than the people it governs although a good government must always lead. Because it did not attempt to do too much will be another reason, I think, why the London Conference will go down in history as a success, as one more of the many milestones marking the forward march of humanity."

"If statesmen knew that a neighbor is restless and drifting toward trouble, it is their duty to inform the army and navy and the duty of the army and navy to make the necessary preparations for defense. So, conversely, if the outlook is entirely peaceful, the statesmen, on informing the army and navy, have a right to expect them to cut down their forces to the safe minimum."

"The London Conference has put an end to competition in naval building, and everyone knows that such competition is a breeder of war. I believe, as I am sure you all

HAWAII BOY WINS ECON HONOR FUND

Bankers Association Awards Prize to Japanese

Special To The Japanese American News HONOLULU, June 19.—The loan scholarship of $250, given annually by the Educational Foundation of the American Bankers Association, to an outstanding student in economics and banking at the University of Hawaii, has been awarded to Rupert Tutoumu Haramoto, according to President David L. Crawford.

Haramoto, who is a senior, and lives at 1879 Anapuni street, has attended the university during the past three years, majoring in commerce and banking. He is a member of the Commerce club and of the class Forensic Club.

The loan scholarship fund of the American Bankers Association has been available at the University of Hawaii during the past two years. It has been held during both years by Thomas Masao Dalshi.

Established by the American Bankers Association, in 1925, to commemorate its fiftieth anniversary, the fund is intended to stimulate a wider interest in the study of banking and economics and to afford worthy students, who are entirely or partially self-supporting, an opportunity to pursue such courses. Leading colleges and universities throughout the United States share in the scholarships.

According to rules of the association, a student granted a loan scholarship is allowed three years, after the date of his graduation, in which to repay the loan. If payment is made within one year, interest is not charged; if longer periods are required, interest at 5 per cent per annum is included.

Marysville Boys In Close Game Defeat Stockton Yamatos

Special To The Japanese American News MARYSVILLE, June 19.—The Stockton Yamatos were defeated in a nip and tuck game by the Hub City boys last Sunday at the latter's diamond by a close score of 6-5.

With the score standing 5-4 in favor of the Yamatos in the 9th, Marysville made a sensational rally and scored 2 runs on Kuroda's timely double after 2 downs with 2 on base.

Marysville's batting spree was the cause of Yamato's downfall after collecting 13 hits off Nakahara and Mirikitani. Yamachi of Marysville hurled a bangup game and allowed 6 scattered hits, and sent 10 batters via the strike out route. Nakahara fanned 6 until the 6th but was replaced by Mirikitani who fanned 4 in the last 3 cantos.

The batting star of the day was Ito of Stockton collecting 2 clean triples. Kuroda and Yamachi of Marysville collected 3 hits apiece and Mirikitani of Stockton and Maruyama of Marysville made a circuit clout apiece.

Nushida of Stockton played a good game at short and Akaba also played a good game at left field without committing any miscues.

This coming Sunday Marysville will go to Stockton for a return game. A thrilling game is expected as the Yamatos will fight hard and seek revenge.

BEST FRIEND OF PEACE

By GLENN FRANK The honest geologist is the best friend of peace. I doubt that the fervent preachments of the pacifists will, in the long run, materially affect the outlook for peace.

I am ardently in favor of any and every intelligent indictment of war as political insanity and moral imbecility, but I have little hope that the memory of such indictments will ever survive a fire in the crowd's blood or stimulate intelligence in unintelligent political leaders.

I think peace is more likely to come from more prosaic sources. Specifically, I think, as I have said, that the honest geologist is the best friend of peace.

And this is why I think so: The military staffs of modern governments, as they lay their plans for possible future wars, must give serious attention to the problem of resources other than man-power, for modern war is increasingly a contest in resources.

As long as war was a relatively small scale enterprise, the problem of material resources did not mean much to the future of war and peace. In small scale wars man power was the primary problem. But war is now a large scale adventure.

The world war squandered mineral resources at a staggeringly rapid rate, but those who are at all conversant with the war preparations of the major powers today know that a next war would outstrip the last war in scale far beyond the extent to which the last war outstripped former wars.

Oakland Merritts to Encounter With Chinese on Sunday

Special To The Japanese American News OAKLAND, June 19.—The Merritts ball tossers will meet the strong Wa-Sung nine this Sunday, June 22, on the Alameda Taikui Kai grounds at 1 p. m.

The Merritts having finished the East Bay Japanese League with 3 games won and 3 lost, will face one of the strongest teams in the East Bay, the Wa-Sungs. This will probably be one of the best games to be played between the two teams this season. Since the Wa-Sungs won 4-2 in a previous game, the Merritts will be out on the field seeking revenge.

The Wa-Sung nine will take the field as the favorites in that they have a strong pitching staff in Al Bowen and Chan, with G. Bowen on the receiving end. They will be backed up by a strong, fast infield. Due to the absence of "Lefty" Kogo Kitamura, star clincher, who has left for the country, the pitching burden will lie on George Chikubo with Yuasa on the receiving end.

FIRE RAZES 7 STORES IN GUADALUPE

Japanese District Is Scene of $35,000 Blaze Damage

Special To The Japanese American News GUADALUPE, June 19.—Fire, said to be of incendiary origin, swept the Japanese district late Thursday night and destroyed several Japanese residences and stores. Approximately 35,000-dollar damages were suffered by the local Japanese. The fire started from the back of Takumi restaurant on the west side of the Japanese district about 10 o'clock Tuesday night. Within a short space of time the fire spread rapidly and turned the district into an inferno of blinding smoke and scorching flames.

After licking up the restaurant the flames turned their devilish tongues upon the adjoining structures and riddled completely the Chicago chop suey house, the Common pool room, the Wada Co., the Nakase Co., the Hiraawa barber shop, and the Yonikawa noodle house.

Young people's organizations mobilized their forces to quiet the flames. The fire was finally put under control about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning.

A special meeting of the local Japanese Association and Kenjin Kais was held Wednesday afternoon to plan for the ways and means to reconstruct the Japanese district. The town of Guadalupe is composed mostly of Japanese. It experienced a fire a several years ago which completely burned down the Japanese district. The houses which were destroyed to ashes by the Tuesday fire were still new.

New Envoy Forbes Praised as Man Suited to Smooth Relations Between Nations of Diverse Cultures, Treaty Lauded

The move initiated in Washington by Representative Albert Johnson, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, to include Japan in the quota law, was given strong support by William Castle Jr., ambassador extraordinary to Tokyo, who arrived in San Francisco Thursday aboard the Matson Liner Malolo.

Characterizing the Occidental exclusion provisions of the Immigration act of 1924 as a "great mistake," Castle expressed his hope that Congress will take appropriate steps to place Japan under quota and thus relieve a six-year tension between the two greatest countries in the Pacific basin.

"Japan has a galaxy of eminent statesmen," he continued, "and not the least of them is the former ambassador to the United States, Mr. Masano Hanihara. Having kept silent for six years over an issue in which he was a prominent figure, the Japanese diplomat waited for an opportune moment to express his conviction. I am heartily in accord with the general principle of including Japan in the quota."

When questioned as to his views on the qualification of Cameron Forbes as ambassador to Japan, Castle replied that the former governor general of the Philippines was eminently fitted to represent the United States at Tokyo.

He added, Forbes possesses wide knowledge of the Orient, Castle said. On the subject of the London naval treaty, the ambassador to Tokyo believes that the three major powers have each sacrificed for a common good.

"The fact that nobody in the naval circles of the three powers is satisfied is patent proof that no nation suffered a bad bargain, he said. More important than the material savings effected by this treaty—and the savings amount to a considerable figure—is the sense of friendship that resulted from the endeavor to cut down the common burden of taxation, said Castle.

While in Tokyo, Castle delivered an address, in the course of which he described the operations of the navy in the three countries. At that time, he said that the naval expert is a specialist, and his field has to be limited if he is to be a good expert. For this reason, he continued, ultimate decisions should be made by those whose business it is to know the temper of nations and international situations.

GLOOMY PROPHECIES

"There are men in all three, to be sure, who are discussing what might happen if something else happened, on some unforeseen occasion. One man, for example, testified before the naval committee of the American Senate that the United States has put itself through this agreement, in a position inferior to Japan and that we have sold out to England, the inference being that in another war America will be destroyed."

"Talk of this kind will permanently influence no one. No nation sold out to any other because all the delegates were patriotic men. Such gloomy prophecies are of course, accepted as truth by those who are ready to believe them and are as stoutly denied by those who measure national safety more by the good will of their neighbors than by the number of their guns."

"There are others who say the Conference failed because it did not accomplish much more. This also is a fallacy. Those who have studied the history of human progress know that permanent reforms come slowly. Of course there are times when a nation moves very quickly under the inspiration of truly great men—the Emperor Meiji was one of these. George Washington was another. But as a rule reform and progress results from the slow process of national education."

SLOW BUT FORWARD MOVE

"A government cannot go forward very much faster than the people it governs although a good government must always lead. Because it did not attempt to do too much will be another reason, I think, why the London Conference will go down in history as a success, as one more of the many milestones marking the forward march of humanity."

"If statesmen knew that a neighbor is restless and drifting toward trouble, it is their duty to inform the army and navy and the duty of the army and navy to make the necessary preparations for defense. So, conversely, if the outlook is entirely peaceful, the statesmen, on informing the army and navy, have a right to expect them to cut down their forces to the safe minimum."

"The London Conference has put an end to competition in naval building, and everyone knows that such competition is a breeder of war. I believe, as I am sure you all
