PACT GROUP OPENS MEET FOR INQUIRY

Privy Council Begins Investigation of London Treaty

[Special to The Japanese American News]
TOKYO, Aug. 18.—The Investigation Committee of the Privy Council formally opened its meeting today with Count Miyaji Ito presiding and all the other eight members in attendance. Cabinet members were not in attendance.

[Special to The Japanese American News]
TOKYO, Aug. 17.—The Privy Council committee on the investigation of the London treaty is to open its meetings at 1 p.m. August 18. Cabinet members, who are ex-officio members of the Privy Council will not be included in the meetings, it was announced.

All the members of the Privy Council gathered in Tokyo today in readiness for the session. Marquis N. Kuroda, committee member, returned today from his villa at the hot springs at Ikaho.

Minister of Communications, Mr. Tawara, reports that the chairman of the investigation committee, Count Miyaji Ito, will not insist on the request to see the memorandum sent by the Naval Board to the Emperor.

In stead, the committee will focus its attention upon the question of the disposal of the surplus funds rising from the acceptance of the London treaty. The question will be, will the surplus be used for tax reduction mainly, or for the building up of the new naval plan?

While the Privy Council is deliberating on whether the navy should be given support in its building program or not, the Finance department is already planning on a radical cut in the Navy budget. The Finance department has stated that it desires the Navy to limit their new construction expenses to somewhere within the limit of ¥200,000—¥250,000.

On the other hand, the Naval Board asserts that that is not enough. In fact, with that small amount to spend on cruisers, aircraft carriers, and other necessities the navy would be seriously handicapped. For instance, an air force of 18 corps, 1 corps of seaplanes, and air carriers with three times their present capacity would only equal 20 per cent of the air force possessed by America.

AMERICA LOOKS BACK

By GLENN FRANK

America needs just now to bring to the determination and direction of her economic and political policies the hindsight of the historian and the foresight of the statesman.

We cannot, at the present juncture in American affairs, afford the luxury of leadership by opportunists and improvers.

A planless past has produced a panicky present.

A planless present, dominated by hastily improvised policies to jack up morale and hastily improvised protests to provide stump-speech copy for the next campaign, will produce a fear-ridden future in which we shall be dragged at the heels of forces over which we shall be exerted no more control than we exerted over the forces that brought a bloated market to explosion.

This fear-ridden future need not be!

There is genius enough in America to evolve and to excite political and economic policies that will give us a future which, in point of material well-being and social enrichment, will far outstrip the very real, somewhat spotty, prosperity of the last decade.

If America does not realize this fine and more fruitful future, and begins her realization of it with decent promptness, it will be because, at the top, we suffer a breakdown of economic and political statesmanship, and, at the bottom, the people, in a moment of leaderless confusion, fanatically follows some false prophet from the ultra-reactionary or the ultra-radical camp.

It will not be because the cards of destiny are stacked against us. They are not. Every card in the deck is in our hands. It is a question of playing them expertly.

The answer to America's economic depression and emotional distraction lies in leadership that brings unparalleled clarity of thought and unbreakable courage of action to the problems of the period.

We face something more fundamental than the mood of the mob-mind following a market crash.

Heartening communiques to the effect that the speculators were bad boys but God is in His heaven and all's well with the world are but mild tones that give, at best, a surface stimulation, when the problem to be diagnosed and dealt with is more deeply seated.

With the market debacle of last November, America reached a decisive and definitive turn in the road of her economic and political evolution, but the market debacle itself was only one aspect of a vast complex of industrial and international forces that has left us a bit puzzled at the point where one era ends and another begins.

At this historic juncture America must look back and understand her past clearly before she can look ahead and plan her future creatively.

For the next few days I shall try to interpret America as she looks back into the decade. And the days after I shall devote to a look ahead into the next decade.

MERMEN SET NEW MARKS FOR JAPAN

Middle School Champs Show Big Promise for Future

[Special to The Japanese American News]

TOKYO, Aug. 18.—Three new swimming records for Japan, one of them breaking the record set at Olympic meet at Amsterdam in 1928, was set by Japan's Middle school students at today's swimming tournament at the Meiji Shrine. As a result, a brilliant future in swimming is being predicted by athletic authorities who witnessed the event as the young Middle school students develop in the next few years.

Ryuichi Yokoyama of the Kochi Commercial school won the 400 meter free style event in 4 minutes 57 seconds.

The 50 meter backstroke race was made by K. Katayama in 33 seconds.

Masao Makino made the 800 meter goal in 10 minutes 38.8 seconds.

All three men established new Japan swimming records. Yokoyama is considered the most hopeful of Japan's developing swimmers.

The 800 meter relay was made by Terada, Tanaka, Makino and Takeuchi in 9 minutes 32.4 seconds. This record is not only a record breaker in Japan but breaks the world record set at the Olympia meet in Amsterdam.

Chichibu Maru Due in Port Aug. 21st With Rich Cargoes

[Special to The Japanese American News]

SEATTLE, Aug. 18.—The exhibit of a model Japanese room at the Pacific Northwest Merchants' and Maritime exposition held here last week at the Civic auditorium attracted the interest of the many American visitors.

Women's Society of Kobe Thinks Up New Method of Preventing Suicides by a Novel Use of Signboard Ads

An editorial in the Call-Bulletin it kept them from self destruction. The billboard says:

"Wait a Moment—God is Love. If you are in such circumstances that death seems the only way out, please come to us. We will be your friends."

The society's address is also given.

Considering the number of persons who end their lives, and of others who, in moments of depression or discouragement think about it, such a billboard seems useful.

An anti-suicide society with a fund for outdoor advertising along the waterfront or elsewhere could do much good.
