HAWAII MAN RUNNING FOR SUPERVISOR

Dr. Harry I. Kurisaki Plans Prevention of Delinquency

HONOLULU, Aug. 28.—Another Japanese American has entered the lists of the political race here. Dr. Harry I. Kurisaki, local dentist, recently filed his nomination papers for the board of supervisors with the county clerk.

Dr. Kurisaki is seeking Republican nomination for supervisor at the primary election to be held on October 4. This is his second political contest, having made his first trial in 1928 when he ran for the house of representatives from the Fifth District without success.

HE IS WELL KNOWN

He is well known in the Japanese community as well as in Republican circles. For many years he served as a member of the G.O.P. territorial central committee and was one of the delegates to the party's convention.

One of his objects in seeking a seat on the board of supervisors is the promotion of children's recreation with the view of diminishing juvenile delinquency. He is a member of Governor Judd's crime commission and in that capacity has learned much about what the city government is doing for juvenile recreation.

Dr. Kurisaki has the following to say about the prevention of juvenile delinquency:

JUVENILE RECREATION

"Adults need not necessarily receive governmental assistance for their recreation. They can, afford to pay for it but not in the case of children. Make a liberal provision for juvenile recreation and you go a long way in preventing juvenile delinquency. It is all very well to talk about and bewail the high percentage of juvenile delinquency, but you cannot remedy the situation effectively unless you make adequate provision for parks and playgrounds where the children may enjoy healthful recreation and be sidetracked from the ways of crime."

Kaku Nakai Chosen New President of S.F. Gakusei Kwai

Japanese Acrobats Nothing Compared to Nippon Waiters

THINGS THAT REMAIN

By GLENN FRANK

Last week, as part of America's look back into the last decade of her economic life, I listed the major factors that underlay the phenomenal prosperity of that period. Yesterday and the day before I discussed some of these factors that have disappeared or diminished in force.

Today I want to ask what, out of all these factors that gave us such astounding plenty during the last decade, remains. Finding the right answer to this question is an important part of the inventory of assets that America needs now to make as she faces the future.

Let us glance into a few representative fields of economic activity: (1) The automobile industry. During the last decade the annual production of automobiles rose from about 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 cars. We cannot keep up that rate of production increase. We made that dramatic jump in production in the period when some 20,000,000 Americans were becoming car owners, many of them for the first time. The best estimate I can get indicates that replacement and the new demand from growth in population may in the years immediately ahead require an annual production of about 4,000,000 cars. Some one may, of course, out-Ford Ford and create a car enough below existing cars in price to create another impetus to the motor industry. (2) The radio industry. Despite the fact that many competent observers are confident that the next decade of this industry will be less spectacular than the last decade, we may witness technical developments in the field of the transmission of sight and sound that will give an unsuspected stimulus to the radio industry. (3) The building trade. While it is true that the epidemic exodus from the cities to the suburbs has reached a relative stabilization, our cities are still over-crowded, in terms of really livable living quarters, and there is much potential life still left in the suburban building program. As a whole, America is under-built. She needs more and better homes. And granted intelligent economic leadership generally, we should see a healthy building program under way during the next decade. (4) The electric industry. Here is an industry that should be more active in the next decade than in the last. If America could electrify all the homes and communities that need electrification, her economic life would receive a tonic to the tune of multiplied billions of dollars. I should be glad, I know, to see electrification still the voice of the sleep-destroying engine that padded and puffed out of my hotel window last night. I could go on, but I want only to illustrate the fact that everything basic remains in America's economic life, except that, in a few super-mechanized and super-efficient industries, a first fresh pioneer market has been exploited and a period of stabilization must be faced. There are still 120,000,000 or more mouths to be fed and bodies to be clothed in a domestic market that is unhampered by internal tariff barriers. As a people, we have far from satisfied the legitimate demands of a healthy and civilized nation. To tolerate depression in this stage-setting is to confess a shameful bankruptcy of leadership.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLUB

Hello, everybody! Are you all ready for another hot argument? Brownie writes to us today to take up the fight in defense of the boys. However, we had better do something else first.

Two boys celebrate their birthdays on August 30. They are Takekage Hamaguchi, P. O. Box 152, Livingston, Calif. and John Hideo Ura, R. F. D. 9-A, Palm Ave., Irvington, Calif. Greetings, Tark and John!

And now let's resume our debate. Perhaps if we get this all out of our systems as soon as possible we might feel better. Here's Brownie Yamashita, of 540 Oxnard Boulevard, Oxnard, Calif. And he has a few words, in fact a lot of words, to say about this matter. Here is Brownie's rally call.

SENIOR BOY MEMBERS! Call for mobilization! Meet at Aunt Mia's with all the cannons and machine guns that you can put on paper! We, who have served the fair damsels since the dawn of knight-hood, are being attacked to take the back seat. Nothing doing!

"By the way, I wonder how many girls can fire a double barrel 72 gauge shot gun fifty feet from the broad side of a barn and hit it? That is, without shutting their eyes and plugging their dainty ears with cotton!

"Oo, la, la! Now I'm in for it! Be not cruel, stalwart friends, but be firm!" Brownie Yamashita.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLUB

up a hornet's nest when he touched the match to this collar writing controversy! Oo, la, la! The demure sex—demure no longer—seems to array a bombardment of A. No. 1 facts before our astonished eyes stating clearly—(yet with true womanly instinct putting quite a few hidden stings into it)—that girls are the equal of boys!

"I shake my head in sorrow at this sadly mistaken belief! (That's still a mistake!) A vocal feminine upholder's gonna chew my neck off for this!"

"Dress making supposed to be the work of women yet the greatest tailors and critics are men! Cooking? The greatest chefs are men! Office work is in the feminine field, yet the fastest typist is a man!

"There are hundreds of famous men in history but only a few women. The reason those women became famous were because they didn't change their minds every few minutes and their 'be down in a five minutes' didn't take an hour! Trust a girl to be un-punctual!"

"All great French detectives believe in 'finding the woman' in most cases. They consider their case half solved if the woman is found. Why? "Girls hold grudges longer than boys and take offense so quickly that true comradeship among girls are very few. Boys are more broad-minded and can 'bear the infirmities of friends.' "Boys are more frank than girls and keep promises more than girls. "Girls consider themselves way above in intelligence 'cause they get better grades in school. Why is this so? I'll tell you. Girls study real hard and get good grades but boys don't study hardly at all but have such intellectual ability that they pass with fair grades! (That's strike two!)"

"Sorry to put so much mustard on the hot dog but it's for the sake of argument. I wonder how many indignant young ladies will rack their heads to make this 'fool' go sit on a tack. Hop to it most worthy opponents. There're two sides to every question, even to a thin sheet of paper, so you've got odds of comebacks. Let's see who wins in our battle of wit!

However, you must give us the benefit of some doubts 'cause there's only three boys to bear the brunt of some four to five hundred girls! Adios!"

Thank you for your learned dissertation on the relative greatness of boys and girls. Brownie. Now, girls, what do you think of it? Remember, girls, that the "knights" are going to be "firm" but not "cruel". Now it's up to the girls to be firm but not catty. We are sorry that the battle has to be so one sided. Perhaps some valiant knight, or a number of knights, will enter the lists for the fray. We hope so.

In the heat of battle Aunt Mia hopes that you will not forget our writing contest. The time is drawing near when all the articles have to be in. So, members, dig up your rusty quills, and write a prize winning article on some experience that you had during vacation.

Aunt Mia is quite exhausted with the warm arguments. So bye bye for today, everybody. Aunt Mia.
