SILVER CUP TO BE GIVEN BRAVE Flier

Zensaku Azuma Given
Hearty Ovation by High Officials

Our flier, Zensaku Azuma, has at last reached Japan. Perhaps not the least of the joyous emotions rampant in the heart of the flier as he stepped out of his plane Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the Tachikawa airfield, near Tokyo, was the sight of his aged mother. And perhaps the happiest and proudest of all invalids in Japan was the father of Azuma, stricken with paralysis and unable to move from his home in Ishikawa-ken to go and greet his suddenly famous son. High and low of Japan today are greeting the flier and rejoicing with him.

Often when the second generation is criticized, A. M. feels like saying, "Wait and see. You haven't given us enough time yet. 50 years from now who knows what the second generation will produce?" And so it was with Zensaku Azuma. Scarcely a score of years ago, the flier was the black sheep of not only the family but of the whole village. Drifting the priestly career planned for him by his family, he ran away and followed the call of adventure. Surely at that time the older people lifted their hands in horror and said, "What are our young folks coming to?" But today, those very people are hailing the achievement of the "bad boy."

A spirit of adventure, a spirit of dare and do, a spirit lone but unafraid, self-reliant keen and proud! Those are good things to have. Once, about half a dozen years ago, A. M. met a fisherman in the swamps and rivers of the Delta region. "Have a fish," he said, offering the biggest bass. "Come and eat it with my family," said A. M. And that is how the acquaintance began. A. M. was surprised by the knowledge, free independent air, and fascinating conversation of the "fisherman." How could an ordinary fisherman be like that, have such thoughts, know so much of the world, mused A. M.—Well, why not? And the matter stood.

About a month ago A. M. discovered that the fisherman of the swamps and striped bass was Zensaku Azuma—Queen world isn't it? But one thing is not queer. That fisherman with his manly love of adventure backed up by an immense amount of self reliance could easily be the man who flew around the world to Tokyo.

That spirit, by the way, may be one of the things that we second generation might emulate with pride.

'Bhratri' Buddhist Magazine Is Issued Mon.; Well Edited

Beautifully bound in a purple cover and with designs and letters printed in gold, the volume 1, number 3, edition of the Bhratri, journal of the league of Y.M.B.A. of North America, was issued Monday.

The magazine, which is made up of more than 100 pages, is well edited. JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLUB

Hello, everybody! Are you all ready for another fray? This battle of Boys vs. Girls is growing as rapidly as a snowball rolling down a hill. Remember? We first started with Kay Yasu and Miye Maruyama. And now look at all the people mixed up in it!

Before the heat of battle starts however, we will congratulate Suma Taira of 910 E. Main St., Brawley, Calif., who is celebrating her birthday on September 3. A happy birthday, Suma!

And now for the fray! First we will start with a gentle knight. Here is Carl Kondo of 457 S. Fickett St., Los Angeles, Calif. He is sending us an article for the Brownie Writing contest, and incidentally has a lance or two to break in the tournament of Boys vs. Girls.

He says, "I received the club pin yesterday. Thanks ever so much. I am wearing it proudly."

I have noted with considerable amusement the interesting discussion going on in the club's columns daily. The subject to which I refer is Boys vs. Girls."

"I think it matters little to which sex one happens to have the misfortune of belonging. Boys think: 'Thanks be to every thing, I'm NOT a girl.' And the girls probably think the same way.

(So far so good, everybody. But boys being boys, and Carl being a boy, he couldn't resist making a thrust with his shining lance. Now lists!)

"HUUH! And about the boys being No. 1 students without study. There are SOME that are naturally born that way, and there are MOSTLY those that aren't. I can make one statement, though. The

Silk Manufacturers of Japan to Visit President Hoover

Bearing greetings from the Japanese silk manufacturers, three leaders of the Japan Trade Promotion association departed for Washington Monday to call at the White House.

They will present President Hoover with a silk centerpiece on which his name has been embroidered, and Mrs. Hoover with a haori coat.

The men are O. Kinoshita, Tokyo; F. Deguchi, Osaka, and M. Kitagawa, Kirin City.
