COMMENTS

By H. M. I.

Why talk so hysterically?—Yes, you who advocate the necessity and un-necessity of the so-called higher education for the second generation Japanese!

You yourselves may not be able to hear clearly the things you are endeavoring so bravely to express. Who knows?

Much idealism reigns supreme in both of your arguments. You are quite idealistic in saying that there is not a bit of reason why a man cannot place himself in such a state of mind that he will be able to put on overalls, pick up a shovel in his right hand, hold a diploma with B. A. or M. A. in his left, and go to work as any other laborer on earth. There is not a bit of reason why he can't; but he won't.

At the same time, you are a little bit blindly optimistic in thinking that a boy will learn to appreciate the beautiful, the good, and the true in life while working eight to nine hours every day of his life. No, that a boy can't do it, since we know that many have accomplished it well; but the average boy won't.

Do you say, What's the use of learning to appreciate the beautiful, the good, and the true, and becoming sentimentalists, for there is so much to be done by the second generation?—What is the use of doing things that, and other thing, and of continuing this drab, monotonous life?

Many said in the past, and we often hear even today, these high sounding words: "Higher education will solve the Japanese problem; higher education will mark the success of the Japanese community; higher education will make us into better Americans. Let us have more of it."

Higher education will never solve racial problems nor the peculiar problems of the Japanese here on the coast from the root. And it is preposterous to think that we have to go to college to train ourselves to become better Americans.

Maybe our parents expected too much from college education. And to those who were thinking of sending their sons and daughters to college, spending thousands of dollars on them, and expecting to see them come out all ready to draw a $500 salary the first month, these words of protest by the opponents of college education might have done some good.

Getting a college education is like possessing stylish head-gear. It's a luxury. And since we all have, to a certain extent, a craving for luxury, it isn't exactly a bad idea to have one. It's convenient. One can put it away when not needed.

If a fellow wants to have his desire satisfied, and can afford it, let him have it. Don't lambast him. It's not your business, although you may think you are doing it for an altruistic purpose.

Life is short. If a boy wants to learn to be broadminded, tolerant, and appreciative of the happenings of the world and the beautiful things in our life by attending a college, let him go, though it may seem to be a little bit luxurious.

But what is a couple of thousands of dollars in a man's life?

S. J. Nitto Club Challenges Games With Bay Cagers

(Special to The Japanese American News) SAN JOSE, Sept. 24.—Challenge is issued today by the San Jose Nitto club to all cage teams of the bay district for a friendly game of basketball as that organization will launch its 1930-31 season this week.

MISS C. ASO IS WEDDED IN DANVILLE

First Christian Rites Ever Held Take Place

(Special to The Japanese American News) DANVILLE, Calif., Sept. 24.—What is said to be the first Christian marriage ever held by Japanese in this locality took place last Sunday afternoon here at the American Presbyterian church, when Mr. Noboru Fukiji of this town and Miss Chiyoko Aso of Hayward were joined in matrimonial tie. The Rev. S. Arima of the Oakland Japanese M. E. church officiated.

Approximately 200 American and Japanese relatives and friends of the couple packed the chapel of the church and witnessed the lovely wedding ceremony.

Mrs. Takeshita of Oakland and an American lady of the Presbyterian church rendered vocal solos at the nuptial rites. A wedding reception was held at the Fukiji home after the services at which time the guests enjoyed a most happy social function ever experienced here.

The Rev. Mr. Arima motored to this town with Mesdames Takeshita, Saito, Isokawa, and Yamagata. They returned home immediately after the ceremony.

Sacramento BFC Elects G. Oyama President of Club

(Special to The Japanese American News) SACRAMENTO, Sept. 24.—A new set of officers for the Better Fellowship circle of this city was chosen at the election held last Sunday night. George Oyama was named president of the Christian young people's group.

Representatives to the Y.P.C. conference to be held in Berkeley, October 10, 11, and 12, were chosen at the meeting. The club meeting will be held on the last Sunday of each month, it was decided.

The other newly elected officers are: Miss Nobu Miyoshi, vice-president; Miss Elizabeth Kozono, secretary; George Kawata, treasurer; and Miss Lorraine Kozono and Roy Nikaido, sergeant-at-arms.

Imperial Univ. Nine Downs Touted Meiji Team by 1 to 0 Score

(Special to The Japanese American News) TOKYO, Sept. 24.—At a spectacular baseball game played here today at the Meiji stadium, the Imperial university defeated the Meiji nine by a score of 1 to 0, in a Tokyo university baseball league game.

This is the first time that the Imperial boys ever beat a first ranking team. The three so-called first class university baseball teams here are the Meiji, the Keio, and the Waseda.

Takahashi took the pitching mound for the Imperial university and his well controlled balls struck out many of the opponent batters. Kobayashi received balls for the winning team.

The battery for the Meiji nine was Hirai and Ikawa. Ball experts here claim that the reason for such a stunning victory was due to Takahashi's pitching, fine fielding, and the complete cooperative spirit manifested by every one of the team.

By her heroic renunciation, in the highly organized and highly urbanized life of contemporary America. Social simplicity, such as our fathers knew, makes for independence; social complexity, such as we know enforces interdependence.

America functions increasingly through groups, orders, organizations, and associations that express the crowd-principle in their purposes and in their procedures.

The American finds himself thinking and acting more and more under crowd-compulsions. The weak man joins the crowd to hide his incapacity. But even the strong man, with more than ordinary capacity and character, is almost irresistibly driven to join the crowd if he is to gain effective leverage in the affairs of his time.

The weak man, happy to escape from his erstwhile sense of impotence, struts in the borrowed feathers of the prestige of his group. The strong man, eager to augment his sense of strength, sets calmly out to utilize the power of the group as a supplemental aid to achievement.

As a stock-holder in the massed power of the crowd, the present day American is at once a man of great strength and less self-respect. Certainly a man of less self-reliance! He cannot live aloof from organization, unless he is willing to be a kind of St. Francis of the boulevards, stripped of most of the comfort and prestige to which the conventional aspires, but, once in the crowd, he finds the crowd-mind, with its standardized prejudices and outworn traditions, towering and tyrannizing over him.

Tomorrow I want to suggest what happens to millions of Americans as they find themselves more or less enslaved by the prejudices and traditions of the crowds or huge organized groups through which America is more and more functioning.

APPLE CITY HAS WEDDING

(Special to The Japanese American News) WATSONVILLE, Sept. 24.—A solemn Buddhist wedding in the chapel of the local temple united Miss Miyeko Yanohira of Watsonville and Mr. Thomas Hashimoto of Los Angeles in wedlock on Sunday morning.

Immediately following the banquet, the bride and groom left for Monterey where another reception was held in the evening.

The bride is a native of Watsonville, and was in Japan for 10 years, graduating from Yodonomizu Girls' high school in Osaka. She returned to this country recently.

The bridegroom is a native of San Francisco, and is now a successful business man in Los Angeles.

Japan Government Plans to Lend $70,000,000 to Relieve Hard Times of Farming and Fishing Villages

While local, state, and federal governments of this country are mustering all their energy in an endeavor to ameliorate the present serious unemployment condition due to hard times in the farming districts, a news report from Japan says that plans to lend $70,000,000 ($38,000,000) of Japanese government funds to relieve the economic distress of farm and fishing villages have been approved by the cabinet. The loans will be at low rates of interest, it is reported.

S. F. JUDGE WONDERS WHY SO FEW JAPANESE CASES

The Japanese American Reporter Gets Interview

During his judicial career as a judge of the San Francisco superior court as well as juvenile court for many years, Judge Frank H. Dunn has had chances to handle only a few cases of crimes committed by Japanese minors, and today he is wondering why.

"Does your Japanese community have any special organization to combat against juvenile delinquencies?" the judge interrelated as he came down from his bench to receive the representative of The Japanese American News for an interview given him the other afternoon.

When informed that there is not any Japanese organization to combat against juvenile delinquencies, and somewhat philosophical eyes and said: "I admire your people. And I only wish that you keep up this good record."

The general tendency among the juvenile delinquency in America is the increasing number of auto to the city, the judge declared. "And of course," he continued, "our young people do not seem to have other intentions than to just steal them to satiate their curiosity."

Among the girls, almost all crimes committed by them are those that have something to do with sex, he said. Their thirst for so-called wild parties and good times tend to involve them in such criminal actions, it is asserted by the judge.

Another noticeable delinquency among the girls are those which were caused by their desire to satisfy their feminine vanity, resulting in bunco and other petty thefts.

Approximately 2900 juvenile delinquency cases are handled by Judge Dunn yearly, and about 100 minors were adjudicated during the fiscal year 1929-30. Forty-one were held to answer.

"Well, anyway what in the deuce got into you all anyway? Starting all this trouble about boys being so much better than girls and vice versa! Why say! It's worse than my 'sax' appeal. If you don't believe it, slip me a sax and let me serenade you for a couple of minutes.

Now that's 'enuff' for you, L. H. M. Kindly don't interrupt me again. I've got the floor now.

"Well, we know we've both got our had spots and so why in the world bring them all out? We all like a little 'secret' and at the rate we're going, we're going to rake out the shortcomings of both sides. Let's keep some.

"I know I like a girl who's got a little tomboyishness in her and who'll talk well, and then, some of you others detest this sort and like the 'seen and not heard' type. And then among you girls there are hero worshippers who look up adoringly at all the movie stars and great guys and—What???—You? My dear girl, who is Mr. Yu?—Oh, I get you! You mean me! Oh, yes! I'm so different!—No, no that isn't my face! It's on the other side!

"Well, anyway, let's get down to the point. I say, let's quit this subject and get another one up not so—shall I say—sophisticated? That ole Kay went and kicked the chair out under me and told me I had to face the floor! (Now, now, the meeting will please come to order)
