COMMENTS

By K. K.

WHAT are you going to do, girls—marry an American, go to Japan, or commit suicide?—Such was the caption which appeared above an article in the Quarterly put out by the Japanese students of the University of Washington some years ago. The author of the article, it seems, had figured out that there were about an equal number of young men and young women among the second generation Japanese.

But the young ladies will never be able to marry the young men of their own group, he held, because of three reasons: First, it is biologically unsound for young people of about the same age to marry; the man should be from three to ten years older than the girl. Second, at a time when the girls have already reached marriageable age, boys of the same age are still in school or are just getting a start in business and are in no position to support a wife. Third, American-born Japanese girls are not temperamentally suited to the Japanese men, who are the only ones that can qualify as to proper age and economic status.

THEREFORE, concluded the author, the only thing left for the girls is to try to marry an American, which is rather impractical; or to go to Japan and to try to become thoroughly Japanese, which seems still more impractical; or to go and jump in the lake. The author seemed to recommend the latter course, but I can see some disadvantages in that. Think of the poor fishes in the lake, for instance.

When that article first came out, I remember it created quite a furor among my feminine friends. Some of them refuse to speak to me even yet, just because I flouted the article gleefully before their eyes. But didn't the dear girls get so excited simply because they only realized how true the situation was? At the risk of losing a few more of my fair friends, I bring the question up again.

I DON'T know much about the "biologically unsound" part, but the rest of the argument surely still holds good. So girls, if you are still waiting for your Prince Charming to come in a Chrysler sport roadster loaded down with bank-notes, it's time to push the button and switch off your pleasant dreams. Really, my dears, there is no Santa Claus—I mean there really isn't.

Some days ago, a fellow scribe was rejecting—or bragging—in this same column over the fact that he had at last found a girl who did not expect her prospective husband

DAUGHTERS OF DR. SMITH TO SAIL SAT.

Eloise and Pauline Smith to Serve in Nippon

BERKELEY, Nov. 5.—Misses Eloise and Pauline Smith, eldest daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Herron Smith, will sail on November 8 on the Chichibu Maru for Japan. Eloise will study for one year in the Aoyama Jogakko and will then go to Seoul to work among the Japanese women in Korea and Manchuria. Pauline will go to Kwassul Women's college to teach English and Bible.

Misses Eloise and Pauline Smith have been in the East for the past few weeks attending two important meetings of the Methodist church. One was the meeting of the Topeka branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society under which they shall go out to the Orient as Missionaries. The other meeting is that of the executive committee of the Women's Foreign Missionary society which convened at Springfield, Massachusetts.

FAMILIAR WITH JAPAN The Misses Smith are very familiar with both Japan and Korea. Eloise, the oldest daughter, has made this trip four times, her first experience being when she was less than a year old in 1905. Pauline has come to America twice with the family on furlough trips.

Both sisters have attained high scholarship honors. After their graduation from the American high school in Seoul, Korea, they came to America to enter college. In 1927 they graduated from the University of Kansas as members of the Phi Beta Kappa national honor society.

TEACH HIGH SCHOOLS Since their graduation they have been engaged in teaching in the high schools of Kansas, returning to Berkeley each summer to do graduate work at the University of California. Dr. Smith is the superintendent of the Pacific coast Japanese Missions for the Methodist church and in that capacity is well known and loved in Japanese circles. Before taking up this position Dr. Smith spent many years in Japan and Korea doing religious work.

PRINCE GOES TO CAPITAL TO SEE PRES.

Not Changed Say Washington Conference Acquaintances

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 5.—Prince Iyesato Tokugawa left this city today for Washington where he will call upon the President of the United States. The descendant of the shoguns arrived in New York aboard the Cunard liner Mauretania on the morning of October 31 after having attended a meeting of the International Parliamentary union at London and the conference of the World's Red Cross society at Brussels. He was met by a battery of cameras and reporters as he came down the gangplank. Consul General S. Sawada and other prominent Japanese and American people were at the dock to receive the distinguished guest.

The prince seemed to be in the best of health and those who had seen him at the Washington conference when he served there as Japan's chief delegate said that he had not changed a bit in the intervening eight years. The head of the House of Peers of Japan chatted amiably on reminiscences of the conference at his hotel the Ambassador hotel after landing. The period of the four days that he spent in New York was filled to overflowing with engagements. Prince Tokugawa is expected in San Francisco sometime during the latter part of November.

Fresno Youth Is Varsity Member on College Grid Team

[Special to The Japanese American News] FRESNO, Nov. 5.—George Domoto, husky Japanese football player on the Fresno State college team is the center of admiration here for his fine playing since the beginning of this season.

The defensive strength and a greater portion of the offensive power of the Bulldog is wrapped up in the quietest of the forward wall, of which Domoto is an indispensable member. This is the second year for the Japanese grid star on the varsity team. He also played for the Fresno Japanese Y.M.A. football team during the last season.

THE TRIPLE TASK OF RURAL LEADERS

By GLENN FRANK
Day before yesterday I suggested that we should be working out something like a national agreement on the objectives of our rural life comparable to the measurable agreement we are reaching on the objectives of our urban life. Yesterday I spoke of the recent National Conference of the Country Life association as significant because it did not restrict its consideration to the economic issues of farm relief and farm property, but dealt with values that lie beneath and beyond economics. I defined the task of rural leadership as the dual enterprise of the quest of bread and the quest of beauty. As I think over what I said yesterday I think that statement needs rounding out. It is more accurate, I think, to say that rural leadership faces a triple task. First, it must deal with the pre-economic forces of rural life. Second, it must deal with the economic forces of rural life. Third, it must deal with the post-economic forces of rural life. Let me define these three terms in a simpler way. First, rural leadership must make its first objective the cultivation of brains in the country. This is the problem of the pre-economic forces. The amazing economic come-back of Denmark was due to the fact that it worked out a system of folk high schools that stimulated and disciplined the brains of the young adults of rural Denmark, who then created the enormously successful cooperative system of Denmark. Second, rural leadership must make its second objective the conquest of bread for the country. This is the problem of the economic forces. And the gist of this problem is that the country must organize as the city has organized to hold its own in this corporate age. Third, rural leadership must make its third objective the capture of beauty. This is the problem of the post-economic forces. As we achieve rural prosperity we must bring beauty into rural life through the cultivation of a folk literature, folk art, folk theater, folk song, etc. Here is the triple task of rural leadership.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR SECTION

Hello, everybody! All here, everybody?—Feelin' fine?—So'm I! Right, let's start. Yesterday was election day in California, wasn't it everybody? Of course none of you are old enough to vote yet but many of you will be voting soon and all of you will someday be able to vote.—Auntie went to vote yesterday. There was a machine for voting and there were lots of little "dingdombobs" which you pulled down over the names of the candidates that you wanted to vote for, or yes or no for the 40 propositions on the ballot. Auntie had had a terrible time trying to study the measures proposed but she was certainly glad that she had so when she got to the polls because it didn't take a jiffy to finish pulling the levers. —Junior— Which reminds auntie. You all remember Big Brother, don't you? Well, he has written to us about election and voting and the polls and everything. Here is what he says. " Cousins of mine:—Today is election day for California and although most of us are still ignorant of the importance of going to the polls vote, we've taken interest in its issues. "The only thing of interest to me is measure No. 7. —Junior— DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME Early to bed
