HOW smart are we? Are the second generation Japanese as intelligent as the Americans? Probably there is no doubt in our minds as to the answer, but what do scientists and scholars say? Five or six years ago, a modest, mild-mannered little man, a preacher's son by the way, started out to find the scientifically correct answer. Working under the direction of Pro. Terman of Stanford, the father of intelligence tests in this country, this quiet little man put hundreds of Japanese up and down the coast through all sorts of mental tests. Today this man, Dr. Marvin I. Darsie, now dean of the University of California at Los Angeles, sporting a scholarly-looking mustache as befits his new position and sitting in his palatial office in Royce hall down on the Westwood campus, can tell you more about the mental characteristics of the second generation Japanese than anyone else in the world.

ACCORDING to Darsie, the Binet method of testing shows that Japanese have an average I. Q. of 99.5 whereas white children rate 99.5. About 75 per cent of the white children made better ratings than the Japanese average, whereas only 28 1/2 per cent of the Japanese children exceeded the American average. From this, it would seem that the second generation are not so smart.

But another test, the Army Beta test, shows the Japanese and American children to be equal up to the age of 12, and the Japanese to be markedly superior after the age of 12.

Still another test shows that the Japanese children are inferior to Americans in reading and nature study; equal in arithmetic, history, and literature; and superior in spelling and art. This test also shows that Japanese children in large cities like San Francisco and Los Angeles are superior to Americans in all subjects. In smaller cities like Sacramento and San Jose, Japanese children were found to be slightly inferior in reading and general information, superior in spelling, and equal in arithmetic. Japanese children in country districts were found to be inferior in all subjects.

MISAKI, a Japanese investigator, thinks Darsie's findings are open to modification. A test made of Japanese children in Vancouver showed them to have an I. Q. of 114.2. Five-sixths of the Japanese boys exceeded a score which was exceeded by only one-half of the whites, and 80 per cent of the Japanese equaled or exceeded the average for the white children. Misaki's own tests among Japanese children in Santa Clara valley showed an I. Q. of 99.96 as opposed to Darsie's score of 99.5.

To quote the conclusions of a scholar: "Japanese are at least equal and possibly slightly superior to Americans in mental processes based on concrete, visually presented situations; Japanese are superior to Americans in mental processes involving acuity of visual perception and recall, and tenacity in attention"—which must be all right, if you get what it means!

Buffed down, what the scholars are trying to say is, the second generation Japanese are superior to Americans in some mental characteristics and Americans are superior to second generation Japanese in others. In other words, the Americans have the stronger line but the second generation Japanese have the stronger backbone. As to which is the better team, it's a toss-up. Even money, boys; no odds offered.

ABORIGINES BEHEAD 10 IN NEW BATTLE

Number of Japanese Dead in Formosa Is Over 100

(Special to The Japanese American News) TOKYO, Nov. 6.—(UP)—Dispatches from Misha, Central Formosa, today said ten Japanese infantrymen were killed, and thirteen wounded and three were missing, following the most severe battle of the expedition against revolting Taiyal tribesmen. The engagement occurred yesterday in Bandal valley, eight miles southwest of Misha, center of disturbances which have taken a toll of more than 100 Japanese lives, at least 86 of them were civilians.

U. S. FINALLY ACCEPTS HIM

S. G. Boy Succeeds in Landing After 2 Attempts

Sadao Noritake, 15, a second generation member, is happy today in the knowledge that he may land and live in the land of his birth. Born in Idaho of Japanese parents, Noritake went to Japan with his parents at the age of 3. But even many years the land of his nativity called and beckoned and he came last April to Seattle alone. He was detained and given a strict examination by immigration authorities there and ordered deported.

Again on September 11 Noritake came on the Tatsuta Maru to America in his second attempt to enter this country, this time to San Francisco.

CULTURE FOR THE COUNTRY

By GLENN FRANK

If America is to develop a balanced national life, we must evolve a culture for the country that will give to Rural America a social and spiritual vitality.

Urban America from dominating the American scene.

There are, I know, two schools of thought respecting the future of our rural culture. First, one school believes that we should waste no time trying to evolve a distinctive culture for Rural America, but should set out to extend the culture of Urban America...

Second, the other school believes that all cultures should sprout from the soil, and that, unless they are an authentic expression of a folk-soul, the culture of Urban America must sprout from the soil of the city and the culture of Rural America sprout from the soil of the country.

I take my place unhesitatingly with the second school. I am unwilling to admit that rural culture must be forever but a pale and poverty-stricken version of urban culture.

This means that our rural leadership must not rest content with wrestling over problems of rural economics.

It is important, as I said the other day, to put more cash into the pocket of the country man. Farm prosperity may exist in a Rural America that remains culturally poverty stricken.

But there is little chance of developing a rich rural culture if the countryside is economically poverty stricken. Rural leadership must deal realistically alike with the problems of farm economics and the problems of rural culture.

But rural leadership must never forget that the end and aim of all crusades in the interest of farm prosperity must be the creation of a rich folk life and folk culture throughout Rural America.

Aichi Prefecture Plans to Send A Pair of Its Best Goldfish to Pres. Hoover for a Xmas Present

(Special to The Japanese American News) TOKYO, Nov. 6.—A pair of the best goldfish in Aichi prefecture will be sent as a Christmas gift to President and Mrs. Hoover, according to an announcement made by the Aichi Prefectural Goldfish association.

Raisers of goldfish in Aichi are now competing for the honor of having their product chosen as the selection to be shipped to Washington.

S. MANCHURIAN RAILWAY PROFITS SHOW DECREASE

(Special to The Japanese American News) TOKYO, Nov. 6.—Net profits realized from the operation of the South Manchurian Railway to the end of October amounted to ¥48,500,000. This is estimated to be about ¥12,700,000 less than last year at the same time.

It is expected that at the end of this year there will be a decreased profit of about ¥25,000,000 at this rate. If all the reduced profits in all the other enterprises now being carried on by Japan are included, the reduction will amount to ¥35,000,000, it is said.

The South Manchurian railway is now being owned half by the government and half by the people of Japan. In spite of a cut in the investments and expenses to the amount of ¥29,000,000, the board of directors is considering a one per cent cut in the stock dividends.

Again he was denied permission to land. This time he appealed to Attorney M. E. Mitchell, who in turn appealed to the Secretary of Labor in Washington. He was allowed to land yesterday.

Washington U. Has 17 Students on Its Rolls from Japan

Other foreign countries represented are England, Germany, Poland, India, Norway, Ireland and Sweden. In recent years South Africa, Cuba, Tasmania, Serbia, Australia and the Isle of Rhodes have been represented by students at the local institution.
