THE FARM HOUSES in Europe seem to grow up in the ground on which they stand...

The contrast is quite interesting in that it reveals the difference of attitude toward life, nature, and society...

But in this country, although the great movement toward the west came to a close half a century ago...

The European farmers are more resigned to the inevitable. They know that the land is small and that they cannot do any better elsewhere...

The farmers here have not come to the point where they can settle down and appreciate the sweet odor of the earth and other subtle elements in nature...

change their minds. We have an instructor in advertising and he teaches us to sell ads and, what's more, write 'em, too. When he barks out, 'Go sell this ad to J. C. Penney company and don't come back till you do!' or 'Sit down and write an ad for the shoe sale'—Mum—You just sit down and do it. But I'm not discouraged as yet. Nay! Just listen to my motto!

"Don't worry if your job is small. And your rewards are few. Remember that the mighty oak was once a nut like you!"

"P. S. I apologize for the terrible typing, but if you once caught a glimpse of my writing, you'd be overjoyed to know that I do attempt typing everytime I write to you."

That typing was a plus, plus compared to auntie's style of punching the keyboards. Mye. Thank you for your consideration. That motto of yours is a very good one. When auntie gets discouraged next time, she will remember that.

And now, nieces and nephews mine, let's say bye before we stomp our toes on the end of the column. Bye!

Auntie Mia.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR SECTION

Will you, Kikui and Bill? Of course not! And of course what you were reported to have said about Sacramento girls was meant to be just a joke, wasn't it? At least, auntie takes it that way.

Well, look at all the medals they've got. I guess they got all those medals for saving some girls in Japan, or something. Please don't tell who sent this because Bill Yamamoto and Kikui Rugo might get sore and crown me—Say, do you know? Bill and Kikui said some of the girls in Japan are better than some in Sacramento. Well, I guess I'll have to resign now."

"Mary, Carl, and Mr. Yasui have stolen my thunder. Their school papers deem 'em Editors, etc, while I, poor me, am—guess what?—I won't keep you in such terrible suspense any longer. I'm assistant stamp-looker of the exchange. I've had twelve weeks of Journalism and all I can do is write features, write ads, and copyread. (That is doing a lot, Mye. Wish that auntie could do that much. Auntie still doesn't know how to do those things. But auntie is proud to know that her nieces and nephews are learning to do those things. When auntie went to school, she never knew that a course in Journalism existed. Grind away, licking stamps, or doing anything learning, Mye, and you will be the important editor of a big paper yet. We will all be rooting for you.)"

"We have a journalistic club, and all you have to do is get 6 inches of editorials, and sell 60 inches of advertising before you're eligible for membership. That is, I mean, you must sell that much advertising for our school paper and get that much editorial in the paper. I'll let you guess how many belong to it. (Are they very rare animals? We take it that they are.)"

"Some people get it into their heads that Journalism's a snap. Well, I wish they'd come to our class just for a week. They'd certainly
