INUKAI BARES JAPAN STAND IN CHINA ROW

Manchuria, Shanghai Disputes Distinct Say Premier

Premier Tsubuyoshi Inukai of Japan, replying to a request for a statement of Japan's position in the present Chinese crisis, has cabled the United Press an exclusive announcement—the first he has made since the eyes of the world turned to the grave difficulties in Shanghai. His statement follows.—The editor.

Both occurrences were due to a similar cause, namely violent Chinese military attacks. In the Shanghai case, an arrangement had been made in consultation by the international authorities in view of the disturbed conditions of the city for its defense by international forces, and in accordance with this scheme a particular sector was allotted to Japan.

The Chinese navy proceeded to carry out this international duty by landing a force of marines. These men immediately were subjected to a galling fire by Chinese troops. In the execution of their international duty, the Japanese returned the fire.

It is believed that soldiers of no other country would or could have done otherwise, certainly American troops would not have been deterred by Chinese bullets from the execution of their appointed and accepted duty.

The Chinese forces which attacked them being in great strength and proceeding to attack and destroy the Japanese residential quarter of Shanghai with its 30,000 Japanese inhabitants, the only possible mode of warding them off was the employment of our naval or aircraft artillery.

It is entirely untrue to say that any bombs were dropped on the Chinese city of Shanghai or on the International Settlement. The whole counter attack was directed exclusively against the attacking Chinese army.

It is to be observed that the concerted measures for defense which included the allotment of one sector to Japanese forces were the outcome of a situation rapidly growing worse.

The tension between Japanese and Chinese forces outside the city sadly resulted in a crescendo of riots and atrocities and Japanese went about in terror of their lives.

Shanghai Cities It must be clearly understood that there are two cities in Shanghai, the International Settlement, internationally governed, and the Chinese municipality.

The international authorities, in order to restore order and security took the concerted measures alluded to, and on Jan. 28 proclaimed a state of siege.

The Chinese city presented a more difficult situation, but on the 28th the mayor gave definite assurances for the future to the Japanese consul general which were regarded as satisfactory.

It was only in the hours of the 29 that despite these assurances Japanese marines were without any provocation attacked in force.

Puts Blame on China Japan infinitely deprecates these occurrences, which have been forced on her by Chinese militarism and military violence.

I am sure a candid examination of the facts will convince anyone that in the Shanghai case her forces could not have acted otherwise than they did with due regard to their international duty.

Japanese American News, Gentlemen: The present Sino-Japanese conflict is followed very closely, no doubt, by every second generation youth. Many depend wholly on the English section of your paper for information.

We of the second generation want all the news of the Orient. I request that you give us the complete United Press dispatches and mark them (UP) so that we may know that they are the original and genuine news.

Yours truly, Toshio Taniguchi.

Chinese Students Want Arms Boycott

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Chinese students at Cornell University today sent a message to President Hoover asking that the United States refrain from selling to Japan any arms or munitions material which might be used in the invasion of China.

EDITORIAL

JAPAN'S POSITION IN THE PRESENT DISPUTE

The present Sino-Japanese conflict was provoked by unmistakable violation of Japanese interests on the part of China. Japan's position is very clear. She intends to scrupulously respect the rights and interests of the powers in the International Settlement at Shanghai and elsewhere. She has no territorial ambitions whatsoever in China. But Japan demands that her own interests and rights acquired by treaties be respected.

TAIYO FAVORITE IN THE NEXT PENINSULA TILTS

By JAMES UYEMURA

This Week Palo Alto at San Jose Salinas at Mt. View

Old man dope took one on the chin when the highly touted Hinodes from Palo Alto way were defeated by a top sided score at Salinas Saturday night, giving the Cowboys undisputed possession of first place in the peninsula cage race.

Perhaps overconfidence on the part of the Hinodes and the absence of Nakamura, star pivot man, were the causes that have led to their downfall at Salinas. Another factor that served to demoralize the team was the injury of Saito, who was forced to leave the game.

However, Taiyo should not be denied the glory of having defeated the Paly team. They deserve lots of credit for their fine showing.

Kyowa Almost Wins The Kyowa-Nitto fracas threw a mild scare into the hearts of the Garden City lads. It seems that Nitto have yet to lose a game to the Kyowans. For a time, at the end of the first half in Saturday's game with the score tied, it looked like the San Jose Indian sign on the Kyowa was sure to be ended.

However, the Red Devils came out of the half time huddle playing like a different team, blasting all hope in the hearts of the Mt. View following by stepping out to win by a track meet score.

Busy Week End Leaving the dreary past, and looking towards the prospects for the week end, Taiyo is a top heavy favorite to take the Kyowans. The Mt. View lads will be striving to emerge from the basement. But with the loss of three eggs from last year's smooth working machine, the Kyowa...

Japan Harbors No Designs on China Declares Debuchi

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Ambassador Debuchi told the Associated Press yesterday that Japan is extremely anxious about the Shanghai situation and eager to see it quieted by negotiation.

"Japan is one of the powers which have a great stake in the international settlement," he said. "That settlement is really a foreign republic. It isn't China, and Japan could not possibly have any territorial aspirations in Shanghai. It already has its share in the international settlement, and about 25,000 citizens in the Shanghai area."

"Of these 25,000 are in the Chapei district, which is the scene of so much fighting. I am hopeful that the strained situation will be relieved by the intervention of the United States, France and Great Britain, suggested by our foreign minister."

"It is difficult, naturally, to negotiate with China as there have been many changes in their government and its officials are reported to be scattered. But I am optimistic and believe a settlement of the trouble will be worked out."

time he was here he stung the anti-incognitos quite a bit, but today he will just booz around in a friendly mood. Now, come Doreen Hasegawa, he won't sting you. And Senorita of Sacramento, Bunny Bumblebee was quite inspired by your description of Hawaii.

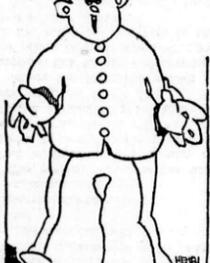

"Oee, but it was hard to swallow the life I led after I read the description of Hawaii as Senorita of Sacramento has seen it. Silvery beaches, waving palms, semi-tropical plants, oh! I could imagine the sort of life the members in Hawaii live. The only regret I have is for the poor teachers who have to dodge coconuts, instead of erasers. (Oh my, you certainly have a keen imagination, Sir Bunny Bumblebee.) I myself was dumbfounded with amazement at the originality of my mental ability. You see, Aunt Peggy, ideas come to me as frequently as snow in San Francisco. (I wish it would snow as frequently in S. F. as you have ideas, Bummy.)"

"Auntie, it seems to me that since I—ahem—made my dynamic reasons for the existence of the non de plumers the members seem to be of a temporary hull. It is a sort of quietness which precedes a volcanic eruption. (Most likely, Bumblebee.) Watch out, Incognitos. So as to pass away the drowsy hours, why can't we send in a description of our favorite city, town or any place we have visited? (That is a very good idea. Suppose you start out, Bumblebee.) All right, Auntie, I thought I would give a poor description of the popularity of a city I dearly love. Namely, a little section of land between Stockton, Kearney, Pine and Pacific streets in San Francisco. I strolled down Market street and crossed the broad street toward Grant avenue, first making sure not to jay walk, and walk until I reach the entrance to Chinatown which begins on Pine. Proceeding up Grant I notice an unusual gayety in the atmosphere. After making inquiry I find it is Chinese New Year, so rejoicing at the stroke of good luck, I stood on the narrow sidewalk and watched the fantastic dragons and floats. You know there is something fascinating about Chinatown. Perhaps it is due to the lack of European influence. The homes are built in Chinese architecture, occasional pagodas on roof tops all painted in lively colors, red, green and gold. Below a less timid soul, I ventured to peek into the interior of the gloomy shop. At one end were a group of men silently playing a game with such solemnity that I wondered if they were really enjoying it. In a corner I noticed the storekeeper dressed in black silk sitting immovable as stone, who upon my intrusion, raised his eyes and gazed at me a moment and resumed his posture again. Fearing to disturb his sanctuaries I hurried away. No doubt he was quoting a passage from Confucius. My time was pressing, so buying a few curious at Sing Pat's, I jostle my way through the crowd, munching on a piece of coconut candy, leaving with regret the din of the new year celebration. So there you are, cousins, my description has put you in a sleepy mood. (No it didn't. Your description is a beautiful mental image of Oriental life in S. F.) Honestly, if you visit Chinatown in S. F. you will always discover new things. (That was a very interesting story. Thank you, Bumblebee.)" — Junior — That is all just now. Today you will have an exhibition of the works of our young artists in this section.

I just found a note on my desk saying that Masami Nobori, a member from Oakland, came to see me on Saturday while I was out. Wasn't it too bad? I got the afternoon off that day so I went window shopping. I am very sorry Masami-san, that I did not see you. I hope to see you some day. And won't you write to the club? We like to have your essays.
