RED RIOTERS QUELLED BY POLICE IN ATTACK UPON JAPAN EMBASSY IN WASH.

Many Injured, 21 Are Arrested as Clubs and Fists Fly in Outbreak Between Police and Communists; Woman is Leader

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—The sharpest Communist rioting that Washington has yet witnessed broke out yesterday afternoon before the Japanese Embassy in Massachusetts avenue in a crowd of about 50 demonstrators appeared to protest against Japanese aggression in China and her threatening gestures against Soviet Russia.

Dozens of heads were cracked as the police attempted to break up the demonstration, and a number of Communists and the police were injured.

Led By A Woman
The demonstration was led by red headed Joan Hardy, 19, of Baltimore, who bore a banner on which was inscribed:

"Stop Terrorism Against China."
Forewarned of the affair, 25 metropolitan police were stationed near the embassy and as the Communists marched eastward, they were stopped just short of the entrance of the grounds.

There was a short parley and argument, and then spectators saw the young woman strike one of the policemen.

He promptly knocked her down and almost immediately there was a general melee.

Fists Fly
The Communists used their fists and the policemen their clubs, and the avenue was filled with struggling men and women. Traffic was halted and a crowd gathered.

About a dozen negroes were among the Communists, including three women. There were also several white women.

After rounding up their prisoners the police took them to the third precinct station house for examination.

Many of the officers had their uniforms torn and bore deep scratches on their faces. They said the women were the worst fighters.

Attorney Thrown Out
An attorney, Bernard Ades, of Baltimore, appeared at the station and said that he was representing the rioters.

"Throw him out," commanded General Glasford, superintendent of police.

Ades was unceremoniously shoved into the street.

Marie Grosner, 19, of Philadelphia, was booked as one of the ring leaders.

Other women arrested gave their names as Rose Smith and Elva Grayson of Philadelphia, and Dorothy Dare of Baltimore.

The only hospital case was policeman Morton, with severe face lacerations.

In all 21 were placed in cells. Police said some would be charged with assault.

Renaming of Grant Avenue is Opposed

Grant Avenue is so famous throughout the country as San Francisco's great shopping district that the name should not be changed to Richardson avenue.

That is the argument of Postmaster Harry L. Todd against a movement to rename the street after William A. Richardson, who built the first adobe home on Dupont street, the forerunner of Grant avenue.

The change in name would also cause postal confusion, Mr. Todd said.

The streets committee has under consideration a resolution to rename the street.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLUB

Conducted by AUNT PEGGY

"Hello, Auntie and cousins o' mine! This is Mary Sakimura of Yakima speaking! (Hello, Mary! How is the girl of sweet sixteen? Yes, I insist on sweet sixteen, even if you tell me it is sour 16.)"

"A mob of my friends are heading toward Los Angeles this year, and if I go with them I will be seeing you, Hello, L. A., San Jose, and dear old Frisco!"

"What's become of our poet Brownie? We miss you. You know it is spring now. Some poetry would make us go awittler."

"Will O' the Wisp kindly drop me a line."

"Who are the two Alamedans who made me write 18 good luck chains? (Heavens! I am glad it wasn't 81.) Will Doreen Hasegawa, Hideo Makabe, Alice Hayashida, the sunshine girl, Sooky Koga and Chioa wait a trifle longer?"

"Urgent call to Kat of Alameda. Write to me Kat."

"Aunt Peg, does a boy by the name of Duncan work in your office?"

(There is one Duncan here, but his surname is not Tsumetsu. His name starts with I. I believe Duncan Tsumetsu lives in Seattle where he is an optometrist, that is what a young man who works in the office tells me. He is a doctor there, assisting his father in practice.) Gee, I am a terrible one at mind reading. And does Kazuo Kawai? (No, dear, not any more. Why Dr. Kawai is a professor at the University of California at Los Angeles.)

S. F. MAN IS HELD UP BY BOLD THIEF

Bandit Ride Is Given Tsuchi, Car Is Stolen

Police are now conducting a thorough search for a daring midday bandit, a white man about 35 years old, who Saturday held up and robbed Wataru Tsuchi, florist, in one of the most daring hold-ups of recent times.

On Delivery
The Japanese victim, who owns the Tsuchi Flower shop at the corner of Buchanan and Geary streets, was held up while delivering flowers to the home of K. Iino, manager of the Pacific Dry goods, who lives at 45 Upper terrace.

Having delivered the flowers, Tsuchi got on his delivery car in front of his residence and was about to start off, when suddenly he was commanded from the rear to hand over the money at the point of a gun.

The bandit had evidently hidden himself in the delivery section of the car to await the return of Tsuchi.

Drives to Park
The Japanese handed over some silver pieces amounting to $5, when he was further ordered to hand over the paper money. Upon being told that he had no more cash on hand, the robber then ordered Tsuchi to drive the car to a lonely place in Golden Gate park.

There the thug ordered Tsuchi out and drove the car away.

Notified of the hold-up by Tsuchi, the police conducted an immediate search and found the car abandoned in an isolated spot within the park.

The title winners, coached by T. Yamanouchi, yodan, won in the young men's division in a field of eight teams, downing the potent Orange county team one to nothing.

Trophies were awarded to Baba of Coyote Pass in the yomen division, Iwata of Norwalk in the shonen division and Iwata of Norwalk in the seiden division.
